TWENTY-NINTH ANNUAL REPORT OF THE
LOCAL GOVERNMENT BOARD FOR IRELAND.

TO HIS EXCELLENCY GEORGE HENRY,
EARL CADOGAN, K.G.,

Lord Lieutenant-General and General Governor of Ireland.

Local Government Board,

Dublin, 28th July, 1902.

MAY IT PLEASE YOUR EXCELLENCY,

WE, the Local Government Board for Ireland, submit to your Excellency this, our Twenty-ninth Annual Report, under the Statute 35 and 36 Vic., Chap. 69, entitled "The Local Government Board (Ireland) Act, 1872."

In doing so, we desire to point out that, in the preparation of this Report, we have again been delayed by the compilation of the requisite statistics for the Appendices. This delay is unavoidable if the Appendices are to be published, as heretofore, with the Report, as we do not feel ourselves justified in including in the Tables figures supplied by local authorities until they have been tested as far as possible by audit and otherwise. It is not possible to close the accounts of the various local bodies, for audit, for several months after the termination of the financial year under report, and the audit cannot be commenced until some little time after the accounts have been closed and the abstracts thereof furnished.

The only possible remedy would appear to be that we should submit our Annual Report without the Appendices and furnish the latter, separately, at the earliest subsequent date. This course would possess the advantage of presenting a review of the various transactions of the year, whilst interest therein remained comparatively fresh in the public mind; but its demerits are obvious, and, therefore, we shall, for the present continue to publish the Report and Appendices together, unless we find it impossible to expedite the completion of the accounts for audit.

We will now refer to the transactions of the various local bodies in Ireland, and to the duties imposed upon us in connection therewith.

I.—COUNTY COUNCILS AND RURAL DISTRICT COUNCILS.

1. General.

Our further experience enables us to confirm the statement in our last Report as to the satisfactory manner in which the duties of the County Councils and Rural District Councils have been discharged. No doubt, in some instances, there has been action, or sometimes inaction, which did not seem to accord with the intentions of the Legislature, but, apart from such exceptional instances, their duties have been satisfactorily and creditably discharged by the Councils and their officials throughout Ireland; and the Councils, we are glad to observe, appear to recognise the zeal and ability with which they are served by their official staff.

2. Levying and Collection of Rates.

In some counties the clerical staff for the preparation of the Rate Books and Warrants was inadequate, and, as a consequence, delay ensued in putting the rate into course of collection. One result of the non-employment of a sufficient clerical staff for the prompt preparation and levying of a rate is financial embarrassment to the Councils concerned, as the liabilities of a Council, being sufficiently well known and regular, require that income by way of rates should be available to discharge such liabilities as they arise. Over and above the hardship involved in keeping creditors out of their money, business-like contractors will probably, if payment is habitually deferred, raise the amount of their tenders in future transactions, so as to obtain interest for unduly postponed payments. Discredit in a general way attaches to any public body which fails to discharge its liabilities punctually; and, as the amounts due have ultimately to be paid, no possible benefit can accrue to ratepayers by undue delay in the striking and collection of a sufficient rate.

The collection of rates was almost universally carried out satisfactorily, but some exceptional cases arose in which the inefficiency or carelessness of individual collectors caused difficulty and delay. It is to be hoped that such unsatisfactory collectors now realize that their continuance in office depends upon the efficient discharge of their duties in future.

Under the Local Government (Ireland) Act, 1900, the majority of Councils probably will in future strike yearly rates collectible in half-yearly moieties, and such a procedure would result in a saving in the expense of assessment.

As a rule, County Councils have struck sufficient rates; and, in the few cases in which the rate has been inadequate, we trust that the Councils have recognised the fact that real economy requires a reduction in actual expenditure and liabilities, and that any attempt to make expenditure appear less by striking insufficient rates must have a fictitious result, and necessarily involve a corresponding addition to the next rate.

The rates for the year under review were lower than those for the preceding year—the total reduction in the amount being £383,701. The first rates struck by the Councils were increased, not only by the large preliminary expenses under a new system, but also in many cases by excessive estimates based on an imperfect calculation of what the actual expenditure would probably be.

3. Amendment of Local Government (Procedure of Councils) Order, 1899.

After their experience of county works some Councils put forward suggestions that they should be enabled to abandon the system of employing contractors for making and maintaining roads, and that power should be given to Councils to have all necessary work of the kind carried out by the County Surveyor, who would employ such labourers as might be necessary, working directly under the County Council without the intervention of any contractor. By the Local Government (Ireland) (No. 2) Act, 1900, power was given to us in the direction suggested, and the subsequent proceedings in pursuance of the Act mentioned will be found in our next Report.

There will not, it is expected, be uniformity of practice among the Councils. Some may adopt the new or "direct labour" system, as it is called, while other Councils may continue to carry out works on roads through Contractors. Opinions are divided as to which system is the better and more economical. It is probable that roads will be maintained in better order by the County Surveyor under the "direct labour" system; but it is a matter for conjecture, so far, whether the cost of supervision and labour under this system will, or will not, unduly exceed the amount that has customarily been paid under the contract system heretofore.

In a few counties steam rollers have been employed, and considerable improvement has taken place in the condition of the roads; but, as a rule, the surface of the roads, especially in the vicinity of towns and villages, leaves much to be desired.

4. Borrowing by County Councils.

A statement of the cases in which we consented to Loans under Section 60 of the Local Government (Ireland) Act, 1898, and Article 22 of the Schedule to the Local Government (Application of Enactments) Order, 1898, will be found in the Appendix to this Report.*

5. Adjustment of financial relations, and of property and liabilities.

A special staff is employed in our office in making the various complicated adjustments that became necessary under the Local Government (Ireland) Act, 1898. A large number of Orders under seal have been issued, and others are in course of preparation. Some difficulty arose as to the jurisdiction of the Board to make Orders adjusting liabilities between Counties and Urban Districts, and further powers in this respect were conferred upon us.

6. Increases of Salaries of Officers.

As was fully explained in our last Annual Report, under section 115 (sub-section 18) of the Local Government (Ireland) Act, 1898, the duty was imposed upon us, in the case of

* See page 106.

"existing officers" whose duties were increased or diminished by reason of anything done by, or in pursuance, of the Act, to determine what remuneration such officers should receive in proportion to the variation of their duties, unless, with our approval, the "existing officers" had made a special agreement with the Councils concerned.

At the time of the coming into operation of the Local Government Act of 1898, there was a very large number of "existing officers" in Ireland, and in comparatively few cases was there any decided difference of opinion between us and the local authorities. Even in these cases, it should be borne in mind that any variation of a salary would affect the existing officer only, not the salary of the office permanently, and that, upon his ceasing to hold office, the Council could fix such reasonable salary as they might think proper. The Councils in some Counties did not appear to realize this fact, and many assertions were made to the effect that we were raising salaries broadcast and without any justification. But, taking into account all the salaries that were raised under this sub-section in every way, both by the Councils and by us, the increase of poundage in the rates would be no more than an imperceptible fraction of one penny in the £. The explanation of the exception taken to the Board's action in this matter, which formed the subject for a motion for the adjournment of the House of Commons, seems to be that questions affecting the salaries of local well-known officers, whether popular or unpopular, always cause considerable interest in the localities respectively concerned.

We desire to emphasise the fact that the variation of salaries in certain circumstances was a duty imposed upon us by the sub-section mentioned. The provisions of the sub-section are mandatory, and no discretionary power is left to us. It has been stated repeatedly during the last couple of years that we increased salaries whenever we could. But the accuracy of this statement is easily tested. By section 31 of the Irish Poor Relief Act, 1838, an absolute discretion was given to the Poor Law Commission to regulate or fix salaries under the Poor Law for any Union officer. This power is still possessed by us as the successors of the Poor Law Commission. But, from the year 1838 to the present time, Orders fixing salaries under the Poor Laws in opposition to the wishes of the local bodies have been made, as far as can be ascertained after an exhaustive search, in only fifteen cases. Ten of these salaries were fixed by the Poor Law Commission before 1872, and five by the Local Government Board since that year. The fact is that our action in the present, as well as in the past, has almost invariably been in the nature of a drag, or veto, as regards increases of salaries proposed by local bodies.

This subject is now referred to by us, as it seems important that there should not be, amongst ratepayers or the public at large, any misconception as to the fact that we restrain expenditure as far as we can within reasonable limits; but, while it has not been our practice in cases within our discretion to become responsible for fixing an increase of salary, in opposition to the wishes of local bodies, we, at the same time, were unable to divest ourselves of the duty, imposed by the Legislature, in regard to the remuneration of "existing officers" under the Local Government (Ireland) Act, 1898.

7. Orders, &c.

Orders and circulars of importance, issued by us, together with the usual statistics, will be found in the Appendix.

II.—POOR RELIEF.

Statistics.

The usual detailed tabulated statements with reference to the administration of the Poor Laws will be found in the Appendix.

1. The following comparative table gives the main aggregate figures of interest in reference to Poor Law administration during the year now under review, and also during the previous year:—

	Year under review.	Previous Year.
Indoor Relief—Number of sick (daily average number).	17,932	18,591
" Number of all other inmates (daily average number).	22,221	23,389
" Total daily average number relieved indoor.	40,153	41,980
" Cost of indoor relief, . . .	£423,727	£407,005
District Schools—Number of children, . . .	530	546
" Cost of maintenance, . . .	£8,161	£8,347
Boarded-out Children—Number of, . . .	2,755	2,604
" Cost of maintenance, . . .	£15,824	£14,987
Outdoor Relief—Daily average number on outdoor relief. (Not including boarded-out children.)	55,387	55,906
" Cost of outdoor relief, . . .	£183,496	£185,066
Salaries and rations of Officers—Amount of, . . .	£182,659	£176,895
Other Expenses—Amount of, . . .	£152,963	£146,173
Total Poor Relief Expenditure, . . .	£966,880	£938,473
Poundage of Expenditure on Valuation, . . .	1s. 3½d.	1s. 3½d.

It will be seen that there is an estimated falling-off of 1,827 in the daily average number of persons receiving in-door relief in the Infirmaries, and in the other portions of the workhouses. The cost of maintenance has, however, increased by £16,722.

The number of children boarded-out of workhouses has, we are glad to observe, increased by 151. Representations have been made by philanthropic associations in favour of enlarging the powers of guardians to board-out children, and we should be glad to see the greatest possible extension granted that might be consistent with public policy. We may in this connection mention that children who have parents, or a parent, in the workhouse are, nevertheless, sent to district schools where such institutions have been established in connection with a group of unions. In these cases parents are permitted to visit their children from time to time. Wise and effective inspection of boarded-out children is, doubtless, necessary; but the inspection ought to be of such a nature as to keep as much as possible in the background, so far as the children and the foster-parents are concerned, any idea that the children are paupers. The number of children in the two district schools of Trim and Glin continues to be about the same as last year.

There is an estimated falling-off of 519 in the daily average number of those on out-door relief, with a saving of £1,570 in the year. We have no doubt that more careful administration in many unions would lead to a very large additional saving without any corresponding hardship to the destitute. The legality of the out-door relief afforded, in numerous instances, by a certain Board of Guardians during the year, was challenged before our Auditor by an association of some of the largest ratepayers in the union; and, in a number of test cases that were selected, the Auditor felt obliged to hold that the relief was afforded illegally, and that the expenditure should be surcharged to the guardians who authorised payment. The objecting ratepayers did not press at the audit except as regards the test cases; but the guardians have received fair notice of the risk that they will incur if they continue to make illegal payments of out-door relief. No doubt, the guardians of other unions, also, will be made more cautious in observing the strict requirements of the law.

The total poor-relief expenditure for the year under review, apart from expenditure from loans on the improvement of workhouse buildings, amounted to £966,830 as against £938,473 in the previous year—that is, an increase of £28,357 in the total expenditure for the year. This increase does not affect the poundage-rate of expenditure on the valuation which still remains at 1s. 3½d.

2. Nursing of the Sick in Workhouse Infirmarys and Hospitals.

Difficulties have from time to time arisen owing to the refusal of Boards of Guardians to provide a sufficient staff of efficient nurses and attendants to take care of the sick in Workhouse Infirmarys and Hospitals; and, during the year now under review, it was considered necessary by us to make and issue a General Order dealing with the matter. But, with the object of making our position clear, it seems desirable to look back and examine the history of sick-nursing under the Poor Law in Ireland, and, at the same time, to consider the various enactments and General Orders enabling or directing nurses or attendants to be appointed.

On the passing of the first Poor Law for Ireland in 1838 the Workhouse Infirmarys and Hospitals were established only for such cases of sickness as might occur among workhouse inmates presumed to be in an average state of health, and the Master and Matron of the Workhouse, with the aid of pauper assistants only, were responsible for the care of the sick in accordance with the directions of the Medical Officer of the Workhouse.

In 1853, after the great Famine and the subsequent outbreak of fever, the Poor Law Commissioners reported to Parliament that the Workhouses of Ireland were assuming, especially in large towns, the character of hospitals for the reception of destitute sick persons; and they added that, if other than destitute persons were admitted into Workhouses on the grounds of sickness, it would be a most serious departure from the original principle of the Irish Poor Law. Notwithstanding this expression of opinion, the Commissioners in the following year recommended that poor, as distinguished from destitute, persons should be eligible for admission into Workhouse Infirmarys, which, it was stated, were in strictness limited to the reception and maintenance of destitute persons only. In 1856 the Commissioners called attention to the increasing tendency of sick persons to resort to workhouses as hospitals, and to a growing disposition in Boards of Guardians to avail themselves of the ample accommodation then at their disposal by admitting the sick poor to the Workhouse hospital.

In the year 1860 the Commissioners stated that they had for some time been anxious that the usefulness of workhouses should be extended so as to afford a more comprehensive system of relief in hospital than then existed for a class of persons, who, though not destitute, were too poor to obtain such advantages for the restoration of health as were afforded by treatment in hospital, and at the same time were too distant from the County Infirmary to receive relief in it. The Commissioners explained that they referred more especially to that constant medical attention, "efficient nursing," and proper description of food which could not be secured to patients under the Dispensaries Act.

In 1861 the Commissioners were able to say that "salaries nurses were employed in less or greater number." The word "salaried" was probably the strongest adjective that could at the time be applied to a nurse, as it conveys the idea of responsibility in connection with payment for discharging the implied duty of being obedient to the Doctor's orders and of being kindly and attentive to the sick.

In the year 1862, by Act of Parliament, poor persons, though not destitute, became legally admissible into Workhouse Infirmarys. "Thus," say the Commissioners, "the last link has been supplied in the connection between the Poor Law and the older system of Medical Charities in Ireland."

Ideas as to what the conditions of nursing should be, and what qualifications a nurse should possess, have developed enormously since the time when the acceptance of a salary was the only guarantee for a nurse's fitness. But even now matters are in a transition stage as to the qualifications and diplomas of nurses, not altogether unlike that in which the medical and surgical profession in Ireland was in the early half of the nineteenth century, when some of the dispensary practitioners, who were paid out of public funds, possessed no diploma, licence, or degree in medicine, midwifery, or surgery, and in some cases not even the licence of an apothecary. Not long before that time, too, there was only one dispensary throughout the extensive county of Mayo. Until very recently the number and qualifications of nurses in a great part of Ireland, especially in Ulster (exclusive of Belfast and some very few other places) bore a close resemblance to the state of things above described as having existed in regard to the qualifications of medical men.

It is now, however, being realised that nurses for the sick, hardly less than physicians and surgeons, require to be systematically trained and instructed in their duties; and that it is not sensible or humane to permit women without such training to gain experience as they blunder along without methodic instruction, or to expect them, without being properly taught, to act as nurses either with credit to themselves or with benefit to the sick committed to their charge.

There is a great advance in public opinion upon this subject, but many Boards of Guardians still continue to resist the efforts to induce them to procure the appointment of qualified nurses rather than of pauper inmates or of persons who, in many cases, are altogether unacquainted with nursing duties.

Resuming the historical sketch of this subject—in April, 1890, we addressed a circular letter to the Boards of Guardians, urging the importance of the appointment of trained and experienced nurses, and pointing out that suffering is caused to the sick by the selection of incapable persons as nurses.

In 1895 a General Order was made, which, amongst other matters created the office of Nurse of the Workhouse, and, owing to the difficulty that arose in getting Boards of Guardians to appoint sufficient nurses with proper qualifications, a further General Order was made in 1897, on the lines of the English General Order forbidding the employment of paupers as nurses, and authorising the Medical Officers of workhouses "in an emergency," to procure nurses. But a considerable number of Boards of Guardians, chiefly in the North of Ireland, objected, not merely to procure temporary nurses in an emergency, but also, to keep up a sufficient staff of efficient nurses for the sick, and of attendants for menial duties. After most prolonged correspondence, and after repeated conferences with our Inspectors, many Boards of Guardians still declined to adopt our urgent recommendations in favour of such additions to their nursing staff as were considered by us to be absolutely necessary in the interest of humanity, as well as of efficient hospital management; and, accordingly, in February, 1901, we issued a General Order, with the object of having the nursing and menial staff of any workhouse increased when necessary. We have since substituted a further Order on the same subject, proceedings in connection with which will be dealt with in our next Report.

It would appear to us to be worthy of most serious consideration whether this very important question of the nursing of the sick might not properly be taken up and dealt with in the United Kingdom by conference between the various teaching and administrative bodies concerned, so that, as in the case of the medical profession in past years, substantial uniformity as regards instruction and qualifications might as far as possible be arranged for, and care be taken that hospitals, having no pretensions for giving adequate instruction to nurses, should not be permitted to issue certificates of training and competence that by too many are accepted as if such certificates were of equal value to those issued by the leading hospitals of the kingdom. Any general scheme would, no doubt, be framed with a due regard for existing individual interests or status acquired at a time of much confusion as regards the training and certifying of nurses. If the heads of any comprehensive general scheme could be arrived at in conference, such a settlement could be confirmed or varied in Parliament.

A very large proportion of the present Poor Law nursing staff possess no qualifications whatever, except such experience and practice as they acquired since their appointment, and their only instruction has been that given by the Visiting Medical Officer on the occasion of his daily visit or visits—in some cases extended and careful, but in others of a perfunctory character as regards giving systematic instruction to nurses. Since the passing of the Local Government (Ireland) Act, 1898, it has been our practice to decline to sanction the appointment of any untrained or uncertified person as a nurse or assistant nurse ; and our opinion is that no person should be appointed, even temporarily, to discharge nursing duties until it has been certified that she or he possesses the qualifications of a medical and surgical nurse.

The training of nurses in the larger Poor Law infirmaries and hospitals in which facilities for training exist is encouraged by us. In some Poor Law infirmaries and hospitals efficient training is given, specially in Belfast Workhouse Infirmery and Fever Hospital, the certificate of which is accepted for the purpose of recoupment of salary under section 58 of the Local Government Act of 1898.

There are 159 Union Infirmaries in Ireland, or, including fever and auxiliary hospitals, there are (we may say) 320 hospitals of all kinds managed by Poor Law Guardians. The number of sick in these institutions at the beginning of the year 1901 was 18,318, exclusive of 3,930 lunatics ; but it would be utterly fallacious to draw any inferences by way of averages from these figures as one of the infirmaries contained as many as 1,976 and another as few as 13 patients, while very many rural fever hospitals were empty during the greater part of the year.

Irrespective of the amounts of salaries offered, the difficulty in procuring qualified nurses, of which some Boards of Guardians complain, would probably be overcome if reasonable conditions prevailed as to suitable private apartments, dietary, daily exercise, and annual vacation. The consideration whether there is a sufficient nursing staff and a properly equipped hospital would also affect any well-trained nurse who might be a candidate. It is natural that nurses should look for reasonable surroundings and conditions ; and guardians ought to be prepared to offer comfortable, adequately-furnished, rooms, with good, well-served food, to those who undertake the trying duties of sick nurses.

3. Lunatics and Idiots in Workhouses.

The number of lunatics and idiots in workhouses remains at, about, 4,000. At present local bodies, and the central authorities, are considering various schemes for the accommodation of lunatics who are now in workhouses, and of those who are in over-crowded lunatic asylums. Our opinion is favourable to the segregation of the lunatics and idiots scattered through all the various workhouses, into institutions altogether set apart for the reception and treatment of cases of mental disease. The number of workhouse epileptic patients who are considered not to be mentally affected is 316. An offer was made to us by an individual (whose name is by request withheld), of a suitable building to be erected for sane epileptics, provided that Boards of Guardians would give some reasonable assurance that they would send to such an institution the sane epileptics (if any) in their charge. In the absence, however, of definite information as to the cost of the proposed institution, most Boards of Guardians felt unable to give any definite undertaking, and the project has apparently been dropped, for the present at all events.

4. Seed Supply Acts.

It will be seen by our last Annual Report that the loans advanced under the Seed Supply and Potato Spraying (Ireland) Act, 1898, amounted to £75,001. Of this amount there only remained due, on 31st March, 1901, a sum of £1,492.

It will also be seen that on the 31st of March, 1900, £507 remained due on account of an aggregate loan of £53,316 advanced under the Seed Potatoes Supply (Ireland) Act, 1895, and £765 on account of a loan of £240,405 advanced under the Seed Potatoes Supply (Ireland) Act, 1890.

The indebtedness under the Act of 1895 has since been fully discharged. We may add, though outside the period of this Report, that a balance of £765, which remained due by Belmullet Union under the Act of 1890, has been remitted by the Public Works Loans Act, 1901.

5. Invalid Foundlings.

The number of these foundlings is now eleven, and we have received a satisfactory report as to their condition.

6. Emigration.

The statistics as to Emigration under the Act 12 & 13 Vic., chap. 104, sec. 26, will be found in the Appendix.*

Under Section 5 of the Purchase of Land (Ireland), Act, 1891, an annual grant of £40,000 a year, known as the "Exchequer Contribution," was assigned, chiefly in aid of the building of Labourers' Cottages. In round numbers about £3,000 of this sum is distributed each year to the six Municipal Boroughs as probate duty grant, and the balance, about £37,000, is available for distribution amongst the counties, so far as is required, in respect of the cost of providing Labourers' Cottages since the passing of the Act mentioned. There was, on 31st March, 1901, an undistributed balance of this Fund, amounting to £47,212, representing the reserved shares of certain counties in which no cottages have yet been provided or in which the full share of the grant was not required to meet the expenditure incurred in providing cottages. The usual statistics as to the distribution of the Grant for 1900-1901 are given in the Appendix* in connection with proceedings under the Labourers Acts.

IV.—MEDICAL CHARITIES AND VACCINATION ACTS.

We publish in the Appendix to this Report tabulated returns for the year ended the 31st March, 1901, giving the number of cases treated by the Medical Officers of Dispensary Districts, the number of persons vaccinated, the number of cases of infectious diseases treated, the expenditure under the Medical Charities and Vaccination Acts, and the cases in which certificates have been issued under the Dispensary Houses (Ireland) Act.

1. Vaccination.

It appears from the returns prepared by the Registrar-General that the total number of births registered in Ireland during the year 1900 was 101,459. According to the returns of Vaccination, furnished by the Registrars there were 91,150 successful primary vaccinations performed during the year; in 3,519 cases during the last quarter the operation was postponed; 184 children were reported during the year as insusceptible to vaccination, and the deaths of 6,327 unvaccinated children under three months old were registered.

In connection with the enforcement of the Vaccination Acts we have during the year been in constant correspondence with the Boards of Guardians throughout the country, who are the local authorities charged with the administration of the Acts. Every Dispensary Medical Officer is obliged under our regulations to furnish to the Guardians four times in each year a complete list of the names of all children registered as born in the district, who are over three months of age and who do not appear to have been vaccinated. The Medical Officer is also bound to furnish to this Department at the same time the number of defaulters returned in the lists supplied to the Guardians, and we thereupon communicate with the Guardians and urge them to take steps for the enforcement of the law. The Relieving Officers are generally employed to look after and notice the parents, and we endeavour as far as possible to induce Boards of

* See page 114.

Guardians to pay these officers a fixed sum for each defaulter reported upon when compliance shall have been made with the requirements of the law, as we have found by experience that in Unions where this course is followed the number of defaulters under the Vaccination Acts is considerably diminished.

2. Vaccine Department of the Local Government Board.

The arrangements made with the National Calf Vaccine Institute, Sandymount Green, Dublin, for the supply of Calf Lymph continue to work satisfactorily.

During the year ended the 31st March, 1901, 5,166 applications for lymph were received from Medical Officers of Workhouses and Dispensaries, and 59,831 tubes of Glycerinated Calf Lymph were distributed. During the same period 1,046 primary and 90 re-vaccinations were performed at our Vaccine Department, 45 Upper Sackville-street, Dublin. Since the 1st April, 1900, as stated in our last Report, this Department now only issues Glycerinated Calf Lymph; the lymph is put in small tubes suitable for one or two vaccinations. Medical Officers are permitted to carry on arm to arm vaccination, and also to take and store for their own use humanized vaccine, but they are not supplied with any Humanized Vaccine Lymph by this Department.

In the Appendix* will be found the detailed report of the Secretary, Dr. A. N. Montgomery, on the working of the Vaccine Department during the year, together with the report of Professor E. J. MacWeeney, who makes on behalf of the Local Government Board a bacterioscopic examination of all lymph before it is issued. A report received from Dr. J. Knox-Denham of the National Calf Vaccine Institute, Sandymount Green, Dublin, on the manner in which the lymph is prepared is also appended.

3. Medicines.

The regulations made by us respecting the Union medicine contracts continue to work satisfactorily. On the 25th February, 1901, we transmitted to the Guardians a revised form of tender and prescribed list of medicines, also a revised form of tender and prescribed list of medical and surgical appliances to be used by them when entering into contracts for the year ended the 1st April, 1902. In revising these lists we carefully considered the various suggestions made by our Medical Inspectors, and by a number of Poor Law Medical Officers who had communicated with us after the issue of the previous lists. We also gave careful attention to certain points brought under our notice by a deputation of the drug contractors to Boards of Guardians.

* See pages 90 to 96.

As a result, a number of drugs have been added to the lists, while some others have been omitted, as it was found, either that they were not in general use, or that, as a result of analysis performed during the year, they had proved unsatisfactory. The prices in the revised lists have again been carefully revised and brought more in accordance with the present market quotations.

One important change which we have made in the tender form stipulates that the contractor is entitled to be paid, according to a schedule of prices attached to the tender, for all empty packages, hampers, jars, bottles, &c., not returned within a period of six months from the date of receipt thereof by the Guardians. We felt constrained to make this provision owing to the representations made to us of the serious losses sustained by the contractors through the failure of the Guardians to return the "empties," &c. We considered that if the "empties" were returned, which they unquestionably should be, the persons tendering would be in a position to offer more favourable terms, and that the Guardians would reap the benefit in the reduced cost of the medicines.

We have also, by our Order of the 23rd March, 1901,* amended our regulations as regards the making of these contracts. The principal change is the rule stipulating that recoupment out of the Local Taxation (Ireland) Account will not be allowed unless the contractor is either a recognised manufacturer or a recognised dealer, who keeps in stock a full assortment of the articles on the prescribed lists.

As regards the analysis of the drugs, our regulations require that each Medical Officer shall forward for analysis from three to six samples from each quarterly supply of drugs. Owing to the number of reports to be dealt with consequent on this regulation, and the highly technical character of the work, we have obtained the services of a practical pharmacist for this particular branch.

The pharmacist commenced work on the 1st February, 1901, and from that date to the 31st March following, he examined 302 reports of Analysts on drugs forwarded from 45 workhouses and 257 dispensary districts.

The drugs were reported to be fully up to standard in 248 cases. In 11 cases the analyses were unsatisfactory, owing to the fact that the samples forwarded by the Medical Officers were insufficient in quantity.

In 40 cases (being 14·2 per cent. of the whole) the samples were reported by the Analysts to be under the recognised standards in quality. In all cases the drugs unfavourably reported on were returned and replaced by fresh supplies at the contractor's expense.

The great bulk of the failures consists of deficiency of alcohol in tinctures, liquid extracts, and liniments. In some cases, where methylated liniments were sent instead of pure pharmacopœial liniments, which the contractors were bound to supply under the contract for 1900-1, we required them to refund the difference in the cost. In our revised list we have permitted the use of methylated liniments, and the prices have been reduced accordingly.

The average of unfavourable reports cannot be considered as quite satisfactory; in many instances, however, the deficiencies were trifling, and the Board hope that when the contractors come to realize that none but standard drugs will be accepted, and that serious notice will be taken where any contractor supplies inferior drugs, the quality will in future be up to the standard, and that a much lower average of failures will have to be reported in future.

The working of our new system has, on the whole, had most gratifying results. The drugs supplied are now, owing to the fact that they are regularly analysed, of a much better quality, and, in addition, a large saving has been effected in the total cost of medicines and medical and surgical appliances.

V.—PUBLIC HEALTH, &c., ACTS.

1. Plague.

During the year under notice the most important matter, from a public health point of view, which we had to deal with, and one that caused us some uneasiness, was occasioned by the serious outbreak of bubonic plague at Glasgow, and the consequent danger of this formidable disease being introduced into this country. The precautionary measures to be taken with the view of preventing the ingress of the disease engaged our earnest attention from the time of the outbreak in Scotland, and we are glad to be able to record that although some few suspected cases arrived at Irish ports they were promptly isolated, and such precautionary measures taken as prevented the disease from gaining any foothold in the country.

In the first place, in pursuance of the powers vested in us by Section 149 of the Public Health (Ireland) Act, 1878, we made an Order* prescribing Temporary Regulations, to be observed for a period of six months by the various Sanitary Authorities in Ireland, by the Officers of Customs and of Coastguards and by Masters of Ships, &c., having for their object the detention and examination of ships arriving from any port infected with plague; the removal to hospital of any persons on board suffering, or suspected to be suffering, from plague; and the disinfection or destruction of all infected articles, as well as the obtaining of particulars as to the name and residence of all other persons on board before permitting them to land, with a view to such persons being kept under observation after arrival at their respective destinations. A further Order* under the same section was issued by us whereby, for a period of twelve months, plague was made a notifiable disease in all sanitary districts in which the Infectious Disease (Notification) Act, 1889, had been adopted.

We also issued a Circular† to the several Sanitary Authorities impressing upon them the necessity for prompt and effective local sanitary administration, in order that, if plague should unfortunately be introduced into this country, the sanitary condition of the district or districts visited might be such as would be likely to prevent the spread of the disease. We pointed out in this Circular the principal matters to which we considered special attention should be given—such as the abatement of all nuisances, the inspection of lodging and tenement houses, the prevention of overcrowding, the necessity for strict personal and domestic cleanliness, &c.; and we also informed the local bodies that our staff of Medical Inspectors, which was increased for the purpose, would be prepared to advise sanitary authorities and their officers on all matters connected with sanitary administration on which they might desire to obtain information. With the Circular, we forwarded copies of a Memorandum embodying the views of the Royal College of Physicians of Ireland on the subject of plague, and copies of Directions for obtaining and sending material from suspected cases of plague for examination by our Bacteriologist.

Concurrently with these instructions to sanitary authorities, we directed our Medical Inspectors to visit the various ports and examine into the sufficiency of the arrangements made for the interception and treatment of cases of plague, and for the observation of suspected cases. We also instructed them to visit the larger towns and confer with the Medical Officers of Health and Sanitary Committees, and urge upon them the importance of removing as far as possible all insanitary conditions, and more particularly the grosser filth nuisances. As the result of these inspections, we have since received a number of valuable reports from our Inspectors dealing in detail with the arrangements made at the various ports, and also with the sanitary circumstances and administration of the larger towns referred to, and, as these are rather voluminous, we have decided to publish them separately, in a special Supplement to this Report.

Owing to the subsidence and extinction of the outbreak at Glasgow we were enabled, on the 10th December, 1900, to make an Order‡ revoking the Temporary Regulations above referred to as from the 18th of that month.

In view, however, of the occurrence of cases of plague abroad, we thought it well to issue new Permanent Regulations§ of the same nature respecting cholera, yellow fever, and plague, in substitution for those issued by us in November, 1896.

The small-pox cases attended by the medical officers of dispensary districts during the year ended the 31st of March,

1901, as given above, are classified in the following table, which has been prepared from the quarterly returns furnished to us by the medical officers:—

An outbreak of small-pox took place in the neighbourhood of Dungloe, in the Glenties Rural District, the infection having been introduced into that locality by persons who had been living in Glasgow, where for some time previously an epidemic of this formidable disease had existed. Amongst those reported to us as stricken with the disease was the Medical Officer of Health for the District. We sent our Medical Inspectors, Dr. Bigger and Dr. Stawell (since deceased) to the district immediately on learning of the outbreak, and we believe that it was largely owing to their prompt and energetic action in making a house to house inspection, in examining the inmates, and having the persons affected (or any suspicious cases) removed forthwith to hospital, as well as having all infected premises properly disinfected, and vaccination and revaccination carried out generally in the neighbourhood, that the outbreak was so speedily suppressed. It is satisfactory to be able to record that only one case terminated fatally.

In connection with this matter we desire to observe that we were urged by some local authorities to issue an Order prohibiting the importation of rags and old clothes from Glasgow; but in the absence of any proof that small-pox is conveyed by imported rags, and having regard to the interference with trade which such an Order would occasion, we did not think we would be justified in acceding to the application. Similarly, we were requested to make an Order providing for the detention by the Port Authorities of all vessels coming from Glasgow, and the medical examination of persons on board before permitting them to land, as in the case of vessels arriving from ports known to be infected with cholera, yellow fever, or plague; but in view of the shortness of the sea-passage between Glasgow and ports in Ireland, and of the long period of incubation in cases of this disease, we thought that the adoption of such restrictive measures, while entailing much extra expense, would not be likely to secure any beneficial results, and would only prove to be a source of great inconvenience to the travelling public. We, therefore, declined to make such an Order, and impressed upon the local authorities that, in our opinion, the best means of preventing the introduction of small-pox is to protect the inhabitants by efficient vaccination or re-vaccination.

3. Cases of Fever treated in Dispensary Districts.

The following table shows the number of cases of fever (other than scarlet fever) reported to us by the medical officers of dispensary districts as having been attended by them since the year ended in 1865:—

On examination of these figures it will be seen that the number of fever cases in Ireland reported by medical officers of dispensary districts during the past year was less than one-fourth of the number so reported in 1878, and this gratifying result is, we think, mainly to be attributed to the improvement in local sanitary administration which has been effected since the passing of the Public Health (Ireland) Act, 1878.

4. Scarlet Fever.

The cases of scarlet fever treated by medical officers of dispensary districts in the year ended the 31st of March, 1901, likewise show a diminution, the number being 1,591, as compared with 2,118 in 1878.

5. Outbreaks of Infectious Disease.

During the year 1900-1901 several outbreaks of infectious disease occurred in different parts of the country, and we give particulars in relation to the more important of these in the following table:—

District.	Date of Outbreak.	Nature of Disease.	Observations.
Ballina Rural, . . .	July, 1900.	Typhus Fever.	Eight cases occurred in the Ballina Dispensary District. Seven of the patients were removed to hospital. Outbreak due probably to the insanitary surroundings of dwelling-houses. Sanitary sub-officer guilty of neglect of duty in regard to disinfection of infected premises. Sanitary authority were urged to abate all nuisances caused by accumulations of manure in the vicinity of dwelling-houses, and sanitary sub-officer cautioned.
Ballyshannon No. 3 Rural.	March, 1900.	Enteric Fever.	This was a sudden outbreak in the Kilmough Dispensary District. Thirty cases occurred between the 19th and 31st of March, and nearly all the patients were removed to hospital. Almost all the patients had been using separated milk obtained from a creamery in the centre of the affected district. From the facts ascertained by our Medical Inspector and the result of the investigations of our Bacteriologist, Dr. MacWenney, there is little doubt that the fever was spread by the use of separated creamery milk, as the first patient attacked sent milk to the creamery during his illness; this patient's sickness was apparently caused by drinking polluted water from a pond. The disease was promptly stamped out, owing chiefly to the energy displayed by Dr. Canning, Medical Officer of Health, in having the patients promptly removed to hospital, and the premises occupied by them, as well as their clothing and bedding, disinfected. We urged the Sanitary Authority to use their influence with the creamery proprietors, and endeavour to induce them to exercise more care in regard to the milk received at the creamery, by refusing to take milk from any premises where there were cases of infectious disease, or where the milk was not properly stored and the milk vessels and byres kept clean.
Cavan Rural, . . .	Nov. and Dec., 1900.	Enteric Fever.	The outbreak in this case assumed large proportions and occurred in the Arva Dispensary District. Fifty-two cases were reported, six proving fatal. The failure of the Medical Officer of Health to report the outbreak to this Department, and the concealment of their illness in the case of certain patients, accounted in some measure for the extent to which the fever spread. Our Medical Inspector, Dr. Biggar, visited the locality, and, from the particulars obtained by him, it appears unquestionable that the use of separated milk obtained from the Lissat Creamery, situated in the centre of the affected district, was the cause of the illness of

When the nature of the disease was definitely ascertained and the probable source of infection traced, every effort was made to check its further spread by urging the creamery proprietors to close the creamery temporarily, warning the people in the district to boil all milk before using it for dietary purposes, removing patients to hospital in cases where this condition permitted, and disinfecting all infected premises, clothing, and bedding. An inquiry was subsequently held into the conduct of the Medical Officer of Health and he was severely reprimanded.
Coleraine Rural,	March, 1901.	Diphtheria	Eight cases occurred in the village of Garvagh, one terminating fatally. Disease due probably to insanitary surroundings in the dwelling of the patient first attacked. Anti-toxin serum was used in the case of this outbreak with satisfactory results. We requested the Sanitary Authority to take steps to improve the sewerage of the village.
North Dublin Rural,	Summer and Autumn, 1900.	Diphtheria	This was a rather serious outbreak at Howth. It extended over a lengthened period, and full particulars in regard to the epidemic will be found in a special report made by the Medical Inspector of the District, Dr. Edgar Flinn, on the sanitary circumstances and administration of the town, which is printed in the Supplement to this Report.
Galway Rural,	May & June, 1900.	Typhus Fever.	This outbreak occurred in the Aranmore Dispensary District the number of persons attacked by the disease numbering some 16 or 17. The first case occurred in the village of Stradhall about the middle of May and ended fatally. A wake was subsequently held on the body of the deceased, with the result that nearly all the persons who attended the wake contracted the disease. In consequence of the delay on the part of the Medical Officer of Health in giving instructions for the disinfection of infected premises, his neglect to visit the patients regularly, and the great lack of energy displayed by him generally in regard to this epidemic, we felt it necessary to hold an inquiry on oath into his conduct, and, on obtaining full particulars, we expressed our thorough dissatisfaction with his conduct, and intimated that we would take the most severe action with regard to him in the event of any neglect of duty being proved against him in future.
Granard No. 1 Rural,	Mar. & April, 1901.	Typhus Fever.	Three families were affected in this case, the number of persons attacked being about 16, of whom 2 succumbed to the disease. All the patients resided in the Ballinacree Dispensary District. The cause of the outbreak could not be definitely traced, but was probably due either to overcrowding or the insanitary condition of the premises in which the patients resided. The convince-

Galway Rural.	Feb., 1900, to May, 1901.	Typhus chiefly.	This outbreak occurred in the Islands of Arran (Galway No. 3 Dispensary District). The number of persons affected it was impossible to ascertain, as in some instances the patients were not attended by a medical practitioner, while, in others the fever seemed to be of a low ill-defined type, and not diagnosed as typhus. The sanitary surroundings of the dwellings occupied by the inhabitants of the islands was probably the cause of the outbreak. The difficulty experienced in obtaining access to the islands rendered the work of checking the spread of the disease more than usually onerous, especially as in many instances the patients could not be removed to hospital while their condition permitted; but every effort was made, so far as the circumstances would allow, to prevent the spread of the disease. The Medical Officer of Health (Dr. Keen) unfortunately contracted the disease himself, and he subsequently succumbed, during convalescence from fever, to an attack of pneumonia.
Millford Rural.	May, 1900.	Typhus Fever.	This outbreak occurred in the Farnett Dispensary District, 23 persons being attacked, and 5 of the cases proving fatal. The first case was attributed to overcrowding and general insanitary condition of the patient's house, and the remaining cases arose from communication, directly or indirectly, with the infected premises. Where possible the patients were removed to hospital, and the nursing staff was temporarily increased. We urged the sanitary authority to cause thorough inspection of the district to be made by the Sanitary Sub-Officer with the view of having all nuisances abated.
Millstreet and Killarney Rural.	Spring (1903) in Millstreet, extending later on to Killarney.	Enteric Fever.	The first cases occurred at or near Cullen village, in Millstreet Rural District, and were probably caused by the use of impure water, and spread through the district by the medium of milk distributed from the neighbouring creamery. The exact number of cases which occurred at this village could not be ascertained. Some time afterwards the disease appeared in the village of Kynknagree, where 8 or 9 cases were treated. The use of creamery milk or impure water was considered the probable source of infection in this instance. The adjoining portion of the Killarney Rural District, viz., the Coom Dispensary District, was next attacked, and within a short time

Millstreet and Killarney Rural—cont.	Spring (1909), in Millstreet, extending later on to Killarney.	Enteric Fever.	some 30 cases of enteric fever were reported. The outbreak in the Ocum Dispensary District was attributed to the use of separated milk obtained from a creamery, to which infected milk had been sent from the adjoining district of the Millstreet Union. The usual precautionary measures were adopted to prevent the disease spreading, and samples of the suspected milk submitted to our Bacteriologist, Dr. MacWeeney, for examination.
Mitchelstown (No. 2) Rural.	October, 1900.	Enteric Fever.	Cases of this disease occurred with more or less frequency in the Galbally Dispensary District from the end of October until the month of December. The exact number of persons attacked could not be ascertained, as in many instances medical aid was not sought, and the patients went about their ordinary avocations while suffering from the disease in a mild form. There is little doubt that the first cases were caused either by the use of water from polluted sources or by the general insanitary surroundings of the patient's residence. The further spread of the disease was no doubt due to the use of separated milk distributed from the Myra Creamery, as in almost every one of the subsequent cases it was ascertained that the patients drank the separated milk from this creamery. Numerous serious defects were found in the machinery of this creamery, and the desirability of having it closed temporarily pointed out. It was also ascertained that the sewerage of the village of Galbally was very defective, and many sanitary improvements required. The Medical Officer of Health of the district (Dr. Hennessy) worked energetically to check the spread of the disease by having all patients, where possible, removed to hospital, and by seeing personally to the disinfection of infected premises, clothing, and bedding. Samples of the milk and water in use were submitted to Dr. MacWeeney for bacteriological examination.
Oughterard Rural.	June, 1900.	Typhus Fever.	The district affected was the Lettermore Dispensary District. The number of cases in which it was ascertained that the illness was typhus fever was about 50, but before the disease was recognised some deaths occurred, which subsequent inquiries went to show were caused by typhus fever. The disease is supposed to have been introduced from the Spiddal district of the Galway Union, but the information on this point is not conclusive. Our Medical Inspector, Sir Archibald MacCullagh, on visiting the affected district, found the dwellings occupied by the patients, as a rule, in a very insanitary condition, and, in some cases, in his opinion, unfit for human habitation, a condition of things which materially added to

In some cases the patients' residences were so remote from the public roadway that their removal to hospital could not be effected with safety, while in other instances strong opposition was offered by the patients' friends to the execution of justices' orders obtained under sec. 141 of the Public Health (Ireland) Act, 1878.
Swinford Rural.	Feb., 1901.	Typhus Fever.	Fourteen cases (9 in one family) occurred in the Killybeggy Dispensary District. Outbreak due to insanitary condition of patients' residences. All the patients were removed to hospital, and premises disinfected.
Drogheda Urban.	From March to July, 1900.	Typhus Fever.	Twenty-four cases occurred. The first case reported proved fatal, and a wake was held on the body of the deceased with the result that a number of persons who attended the wake contracted the disease. The locality in which the disease originated was very congested and insanitary, and we made representations to the sanitary authority with the view of providing better accommodation for the working classes. In all cases the recommendations of the medical officers were carried out, all clothing being burned and the infected premises disinfected. Fuller information in regard to this outbreak will be found in the special report, furnished by the Inspector, on the sanitary circumstances and administration of this Urban District, which is printed in the Supplement to this Report.
Fermoy Urban.	Dec., 1900.	Measles.	This outbreak commenced early in December in the Military Barracks, and about the middle of January extended to the civilian population. Within a month over 100 cases occurred, and great difficulty was experienced in checking the spread of the disease, as in many cases parents held the idea that their children should contract the disease sooner or later, and took no steps to prevent them mixing with other children belonging to infected families. The disease was of a mild type, and confined chiefly to children under six years of age. Active measures were taken by the Sanitary Authority with regard to disinfection of all the infected premises.
Londonderry Urban.	Mar. & April, 1900.	Typhus Fever.	About ten cases of the disease occurred in the months of March and April, two proving fatal. A few cases were reported subsequently in the month of May. The disease appeared first in the locality known as "Nailor's Row" and the majority of the patients contracted the disease from direct or indirect communication with the person first attacked. There appears to be little doubt that the outbreak was due to overcrowding and the general insanitary condition of the dwellinghouse in which the first patient resided. All the patients were removed to hospital, and the infected bedding and clothing burned.

District.	Date of Outbreak.	Nature of Disease.	Observations.
Tandragee Urban.	July, 1900, to Feb., 1901.	Diphtheria	Forty-six cases occurred in twenty-five families, four ending fatally. The outbreak could only be attributed to the insanitary surroundings of the premises in which the first cases appeared. The first patients attacked were not removed to hospital, which in a measure accounted for the extensive spread of the disease. Fuller particulars as to this outbreak will be found in the special report made by our Medical Inspector, Dr. Chibborn, on the sanitary circumstances and administration of the Urban District, which is printed in the Supplement to this Report.
Wexford Urban.	January, 1901.	Measles.	Some seven to eight hundred cases are said to have occurred, but the disease was not generally of a severe type, and thirty-eight cases only were reported as having ended fatally. That the outbreak assumed such large proportions was in a large measure due to the fact that medical assistance was not sought in many cases, and that children were allowed to attend school from infected premises. Further details will be found in the special report furnished by our Medical Inspector, Dr. Edgar Finn, on the sanitary circumstances and administration of the Urban District, which is printed in the Supplement to this Report.

6. Enteric Fever.—Creameries.

It will be observed from the foregoing table that outbreaks of enteric fever occurred in different parts of Ireland in districts where "creameries" existed. In these cases assertions were made that the epidemic was attributable to the sending of milk into the creamery from premises in which infectious disease had broken out, and to the subsequent distribution of the "separated milk" amongst the various families usually supplying milk to the creamery. Samples of the separated milk were accordingly obtained and submitted for examination to our Bacteriologist, Professor MacWeeney, who reported that, although he considered it extremely probable that the separated milk from the creamery formed the vehicle of diffusion for the typhoid bacillus, yet his investigations, with the view of conclusively proving the existence of the bacillus coli communis in the samples of milk forwarded to him, were attended with negative results. This may be due in some measure to the fact that the samples sent to the Bacteriologist were collected at a time when precautions had been already adopted to prevent milk from infected premises being forwarded to the creamery; and we shall accordingly endeavour to secure in future that samples of separated milk from creameries in districts in which outbreaks of enteric fever may occur shall be obtained and transmitted to this Department for bacterioscopic examination as soon as possible. We have, however, no doubt that to fully establish bacteriological proof of the presence of the bacillus of typhoid fever in samples of milk forwarded for investigation will continue to be a matter of extreme difficulty. We have been for some years carefully investigating, through our Medical Inspectors, the local causes which have given rise to these frequent outbursts of enteric fever in rural districts, and in many instances where the outbreak assumed epidemic proportions the source of the distribution of the disease has been traced to a creamery. In view of the important part which creameries play in the agricultural development of Ireland, we feel it most desirable that this question should be cleared up; and we have, accordingly, instructed Professor MacWeeney to continue his investigations with the view of more fully elucidating the question of the diffusion of enteric fever through the medium of separated milk or otherwise, of ascertaining the best method of preventing the introduction of the typhoid bacillus, and of rendering it innocuous in the event of its finding its way into the milk supplied to creameries. A valuable report from Professor MacWeeney on the relation of "Creameries" to the spread of enteric fever in Ireland and on the necessity for the Pasteurisation of "Creamery" products will be found in the Appendix.*

7 Typhus Fever.

The number of cases of typhus fever which occurred in the period under review is rather in excess of the average for recent years. As usual, its incidence was upon the poorer districts of the country, and, except in the cases of three Districts, the outbreaks occurred in the Province of Connaught and the western portion of Ulster. A few sporadic cases were reported from other districts.

It is to be regretted that typhus fever, which is essentially a disease due to overcrowding and dirt, and, therefore, to a very large extent preventable, should still be prevalent in certain portions of Ireland. No doubt the economic conditions under which the poor in certain districts live render it most difficult for sanitary authorities to deal effectively with the causes which lead to these outbreaks. We think, however, that greater attention to personal and domestic cleanliness, and to the proper ventilation of the houses of the poor, if duly impressed upon the people, would eventually prevent the recurrence of outbreaks of this disease.

We are, therefore, in constant communication with Sanitary Authorities with the view of awakening them to a sense of their duties and responsibilities in this matter by urging them to exercise the powers conferred on them by the Public Health (Ireland) Act, 1878.

* See page 86.

8. Cerebro-Spinal Meningitis.

The year now under review was marked by an outbreak in Ireland of "Cerebro-Spinal Meningitis," which was for the most part confined to the cities of Dublin and Cork. In Dublin the character of the disease, as compared with that of former visitations, was of a comparatively mild type, though in many cases, as is not unusual in this distressing disease, death ensued with great rapidity. We have obtained a special report on the subject from our Medical Inspector, Dr. Edgar Flinn, which will be found in the Appendix,* and from which it will be seen that about 300 cases, with 80 deaths, occurred in the Dublin Registration Area. For the tables as to ages, deaths, and localities which are appended to the Report the Inspector is indebted to the courtesy of the Registrar General and Sir Charles A. Cameron, C.B., the Medical Superintendent Officer of Health of the City of Dublin.

Some sporadic cases of the disease also occurred in different parts of the country, and in Cork city there was a somewhat extensive outbreak, the disease being of a more severe type, and the relative mortality greater. Children and young adults were attacked, the mortality amongst the former being high. A short memorandum on the subject from our Medical Inspector, Dr. Browne, is printed in the Appendix.†

9. Alleged Default of Sanitary Authorities.

Section 15 of the Public Health (Ireland) Act, 1896, provides that, where complaint is made to us that a sanitary authority has made default in providing their district with a proper supply of water, or with sufficient sewers, or in enforcing any provisions of the Public Health Acts which it is their duty to enforce, we may, if satisfied after due inquiry of the alleged default, make an Order limiting a time for the performance by the sanitary authority of their duty in the matter of such complaint. Such Order may be enforced by writ of mandamus, or we may appoint a person to perform such duty at the expense of the defaulting authority. It will be seen from our last Report that on the 31st March, 1900, we had two such complaints under consideration—one relating to the water supply of Scariff, in the Scariff Rural District, and the other to the sewerage of Irishtown, in the New Ross Urban District; and during the year now under review complaints under the section have been received in respect of the water supply and sewerage of Kilkenny Urban District; the water supply of Killadysert, in the Killadysert Rural District; the water supply of Frenchpark, in the Castlereagh Rural District; and the sewerage of Newcastle (Co. Down), in the Kilkeel Rural District. Local inquiries were held into these complaints by our Inspectors, and, on consideration of the evidence, Orders were made by us, either during the year or subsequently, limiting the time for the performance by the respective sanitary authorities of their duty in the matter of such complaints.

* See page 79.

10. Investment of Rural Sanitary Authorities with powers of Urban Authorities under the Public Health Acts.

Under section 1 of the Public Health (Ireland) Act, 1896, we are enabled on the application of the sanitary authority of any rural district, or of persons rated to the extent of at least one-tenth of the net rateable value of such district, or of any contributory place therein, to declare any provision of the Public Health (Ireland) Acts in force in urban districts to be in force in such rural district or contributory place, and to invest the Rural Authority concerned with all the powers, rights, duties, capacities, liabilities, and obligations of an Urban Authority under those Acts. Particulars of the several Orders made by us during the year in pursuance of this enactment, are given in the Appendix.*

11. Port Sanitary Authorities.

Under the Public Health (Ireland) Act, 1896, we are empowered to make Provisional Orders† constituting any sanitary authority whose district, or part of whose district, forms part of or abuts on any port in Ireland, the sanitary authority of the whole of such port or of any part thereof. Such port sanitary authority may also be formed by combining any two or more sanitary authorities having jurisdiction within such port, or by forming a joint board consisting of representative members of the sanitary authorities affected. Where such a port sanitary authority has been established, they have jurisdiction over all waters within the limits of the port, and can appoint officers to inspect all vessels arriving therein, and to see that adequate measures are taken as to sanitation.

12. Rural Sanitary Expenses.

A Statement of the Orders issued by us during the year, declaring areas of charge for special expenses under the Public Health Acts in Rural Districts, will be found in the Appendix.‡

13. Provisional Orders.

During the year 1900-1901 we made seventeen Provisional Orders, eleven of these being under the Public Health (Ireland) Acts, 1878 to 1900, five under the Housing of the Working Classes (Ireland) Acts, 1890 to 1896, and one under the Local Government (Ireland) Act, 1898. A list of these Orders is given in the Appendix.‡

14. Bye-Laws.

15. Closing of Burial Grounds.

We are empowered by the Public Health (Ireland) Act, 1878, sections 162 to 164, to order that burials in any city, or town, or other limits, or in any burial ground or place of burial, shall be discontinued wholly or subject to any exceptions or qualifications where, on representation made to us or otherwise, it shall appear to us, after due local inquiry, that such an Order is necessary for the protection of the public health, or for the maintenance of public decency, or to prevent a violation of the respect due to the remains of deceased persons.

Orders in pursuance of these sections were made by us during the year ended 31st March, 1901, in the following cases :—

Date of Order.	Description of Burial Ground.	Purpose of Order.
7th April, 1900, ...	Rathclaren Church, Bandon Rural District.	Prohibiting interments from 1st April, 1901.
7th April, 1900, ...	Stradally, Athy No. 2 Rural District.	Prohibiting interments from 1st June, 1900, with exceptions.
8th November, 1900,	Drumragh (old), Omagh Rural District.	Postponing prohibition till 1st March, 1901.
9th January, 1901, ...	Moydow Church, Longford Rural District.	Prohibiting interments from 1st April, 1901, with exceptions.

Inquiries were also held respecting the condition of the Mount Temple Burial Ground, in the Athlone No. 1 Rural District, and Bansha Burial Ground, in the Tipperary No. 1 Rural District; but the evidence adduced did not seem to us to be sufficient to warrant us in prohibiting, either absolutely or with reservations, further burials in these burial grounds.

We issued during the year 29 licences for interments in closed burial grounds.

16. Infectious Disease (Notification) Act, 1889.

On the 31st of March, 1901, the provisions of this Act had been adopted in 64 Rural and 31 Urban Districts. During the year ended on that date, there were 1,617 and 9,305 cases of infectious disease notified in Rural and Urban Districts, respectively. Tables showing the number of cases notified in each District will be found in the Appendix.*

17. Post Office Act, 1891.

This statute enables local authorities to assist in the provision of postal or telegraphic facilities for contributory places within their districts by undertaking to pay to the Postmaster-General any loss that may be sustained in providing such additional service. During this year local undertakings were given in 12 cases, in addition to 109 given since the date of the passing of the Act.

18. Sale of Foods and Drugs Acts, 1875 to 1899.

We regulated, by General Order,† the proof of competency to be furnished by Public Analysts appointed under the Acts.

* See page 140.

† See page 43.

VI.—LOANS.

In both Urban and Rural Districts a considerable part of the expenditure on sewerage, water-supply and other local improvements is defrayed by means of loans to the sanitary authorities, which we sanction in pursuance of Section 237 of the Public Health (Ireland) Act, 1878, and under certain local Acts. For the purpose of the Housing of the Working Classes Acts we also sanction loans to Urban Sanitary Authorities, and to the Commissioners of towns, which are not Urban Sanitary Districts, in cases where the Commissioners desire to provide lodging-house accommodation for the working classes. The loans sanctioned as above during the year ended the 31st of March, 1901, amounted to £546,988 4s. 6d., the largest item included therein being a loan of £254,500 to the Corporation of the City of Dublin for the purposes of Electric Lighting.

We also sanctioned during the year loans amounting to £44,026 which were applied for by Boards of Guardians for Work-house buildings and improvements, loans for the purpose of the Labourers Acts amounting to £62,877 11s. 9d., and loans to County Councils and the Committees of Lunatic Asylums amounting to £74,825.

Detailed lists of these loans will be found in the Appendix.*

VII.—TOWNS IMPROVEMENT (IRELAND) ACT, 1854.

In our last Report we referred to the adoption of this Act in the Town of Newcastle. We made the necessary Approval Order in the matter on the 29th of May, 1900.

VIII.—LABOURERS ACTS.

One of the most remarkable features in connection with local administration during the year was the very general revival throughout Ireland of operations under the Labourers Acts. This may to some extent, if not mainly, be due to the fact that under the Local Government Act of 1898 labourers, as residents, for the first time became possessed of the franchise as Local Government Electors, and in the same way they also became eligible for election as Rural District Councillors.

During the year 1899 the new Rural District Councils proceeded with energy to promote Improvement Schemes under the Labourers Acts for the erection of more cottages, generally with one acre allotments, or for the acquisition of additional half-acres for cottages to which half-acre allotments had previously been attached, when the law limited the extent of each allotment to half a statute acre. Although the first steps for the promotion of the new schemes were taken early in 1899 it was not until early in 1900, owing to the time taken up with the formal preliminaries, that the new Schemes to any considerable extent were submitted to us for confirmation. Some idea of the extent of work to be discharged by us in this respect may be gathered from the fact that Schemes were received from 82 Rural District Councils proposing to provide as many as 5,891 new cottages with garden allotments and 2,871 additional half-acre plots for cottages already erected. As it was found that our permanent staff of Inspectors, having regard to their other duties, could not deal with this additional work as rapidly as seemed reasonable, three additional Inspectors were appointed specially to assist in this duty.

During the year 88 Local Inquiries were held by our Inspectors, and Provisional Orders were made authorising 1,204 cottages and plots, and six additional allotments. Orders became absolute in the same period in respect of 863 new cottages and five additional allotments.

Tables are given in the Appendix showing what has been done by sanitary authorities under the Improvement Schemes authorised, and what is proposed to be done under further improvement Schemes.

Table A shows that, out of 17,166 houses authorised, 14,689 have been provided, of which 14,548 are actually let, and that 498 others were in progress or contracted for on the 31st March, 1901. The aggregate monthly rent of the cottages built in each Rural District, and the amount of such rent in arrear are also shown.

Table B shows that further Improvement Schemes have been, or are about to be, submitted to us, proposing to provide 7,691 new cottages, with garden allotments, 3,951 additional half-acre allotments to cottages already sanctioned, and 16 acres of land to be parcelled out in allotments to be let to labourers living in villages or towns.

From a further Table it will be seen that during the year Loans amounting to £62,877 were sanctioned, making the total amount of Loans sanctioned since the inception of the Acts, £2,051,374.

A great deal of tedious and costly iteration in formal preliminaries has, we may observe, been caused to local bodies by their own failure to observe, superintend, and direct the steps antecedent to the adoption of a formal Scheme. In the absence of careful supervision some positive requirements of the Acts of Parliament have been overlooked in many hundreds of cases. The chief instance in which the positive terms of the Statute are overlooked is, as regards the terms of the Section which requires that, when a new cottage is proposed in substitution of a dwelling unfit for human habitation, the "representation" as to the insanitary house must be supported by a certificate from the Medical Officer of Health condemning the dwelling to be replaced. We are obliged by law to strike out of the Scheme any case in which such a certificate has not been obtained prior to the making of the Scheme; and useless expense and delay have been caused in a very great number of cases by neglect on the part of the local bodies and their officials. It is hardly necessary to say that the Medical Officer of Health is not to be blamed, as a small fee is payable to him by the Council for his certificate in each case. Local bodies have only themselves to blame if representations adopted by them without the requisite certificates are subsequently rejected by us owing to the failure to comply with this simple but necessary Statutory requirement.

Among the other causes that have contributed to the rejection of many proposals in Schemes are a want of judgment in the selection of sites, and an inclusion in Schemes of proposals for cottages on behalf of persons who are already in occupation of good houses, or who could not be deemed to be Agricultural Labourers within the meaning of the Acts.

As regards the selection of sites the Acts specifically require that all interference should be avoided with demesne lands or with any home-farm or lands immediately adjoining and customarily occupied in connection with the residence of the owner of such lands; and it is further provided that in all cases lands shall be selected with due regard to the general situation and convenience of the owner's property, so as to diminish the value thereof as little as possible. Where compulsory powers of taking lands are sought the site must adjoin a public road. Regard must also be had to the fitness of the land for cultivation and as a building-site, while a wholesome and sufficient water supply must be within a reasonable distance. In almost every inquiry our Inspectors find that many of these conditions are unknown to or are overlooked by the person or persons actually concerned in the first instance in the selection of sites. The system of selecting sites in many districts is most unsatisfactory. Frequently a labourer selects a site on a particular farm, and, having filled up a "representation" form accordingly, he procures the necessary number of signatures thereto. The objections to this system would to a large extent be obviated if the Council were to consider carefully the representations, and approve, vary, or reject them according to the facts in each case; but, instead of doing so, the representations are frequently adopted in globo after an inadequate inspection of the documents, leaving it to the Inspector at the public inquiry to point out fatal defects in the Scheme that could easily have been detected by the Council at a stage when expense and delay might have been avoided. It might be far more satisfactory if the owners, occupiers, and labourers of a locality were to endeavour to prepare one comprehensive Scheme for their neighbourhood, failing which the Council should deal most carefully with the single representations made to them. Before adopting any suggestions made to them the Council should have regard to the extent of the farms and the existing accommodation for labourers in the vicinity of each suggested site. The requirements of the neighbourhood as regards labour should be borne in mind, and care should be taken that no reasonable grounds should be left for an imputation of bias or prejudice of any kind. The appointment of a "Sites Committee" for each Electoral Division or other area would probably be most useful in furnishing reports for the guidance of the Council in framing their Scheme. Such a Committee might be comprised of the Councillors for the locality and representatives of owners, occupiers, and labourers. If such a preliminary procedure were adopted, District Councils would certainly find themselves in a much better position to sustain their proposals at the Local Inquiries; and such a system would tend to remove the prevailing erroneous impression on the minds of labourers that the new cottage in each case is being built for the particular labourer who took the trouble to get a "representation" form filled and signed. Such a view, we need hardly observe, is altogether opposed to the letter and spirit of the Acts.

Finally, it should be remembered by Councils that the Local Inquiry by our Inspector is held for the purpose of ascertaining the correctness of the representations, the deficiency of houses for agricultural labourers, the sanitary condition of existing labourers' dwellings and local objections to the proposed Scheme, and, generally, as those propriety of confirming it; and unless the Rural District Council, in each case, produce the necessary evidence to support their proposals, and to rebut any local objections, the Inspector will not be in a position to recommend confirmation of the Scheme. In connection with the consideration of Schemes, the existing local taxation, under all heads, on any district, as well as the maximum rating limit—one shilling in the pound—for the purposes of the Labourers Acts, should always be borne in mind when considering representations with a view to making Improvement Schemes. Councils ought also, according to the circumstances of their Districts, consider whether it would be well for them to postpone the acquisition of additional half-acres until the housing requirements of labourers had been substantially provided for.

We think that if the local bodies pay attention to the several points we have adverted to, the Schemes which they may submit will be far more likely to become effective, and there will be no occasion for the complaints which are now made respecting the rejection of applications by our Inspectors, for which, as we have indicated, the Councils are themselves mainly responsible.

IX.—HOUSING OF THE WORKING CLASSES (IRELAND) ACTS, 1890 to 1896.

Part III. of Act of 1890.

The Corporations of the Cities of Cork and Waterford have been granted loans of £500 and £1,736, respectively. The following Urban District Councils have also been granted loans under these Acts, viz. :—Clontarf, £2,000; Dundalk, £9,750; Killarney, £5,000; Killiney and Ballybrack, £1,500; Letterkenny, £1,000; Midleton, £3,000; Naas, £1,400; Newry, £600; Pembroke, £29,500; Thurles, £4,200. The Town Commissioners of Ballyshannon were granted a loan of £1,400, and the Town Commissioners of Boyle a loan of £1,800, for the purposes of the Acts. These sums, added to £375,164 11s. mentioned under this head in our last Report, make the total amount of the loans sanctioned in connection with houses for the working classes residing in towns £438,550 11s.

X.—THE SMALL DWELLINGS ACQUISITION ACT, 1899.

A loan of £1,262 was sanctioned to the Corporation of the City of Dublin for the purpose of enabling them to make advances to the occupiers of certain dwellings for the purchase thereof under this Act.

XI.—AUDIT OF ACCOUNTS.

In our last Report we gave a list of the various accounts audited by Local Government Board Auditors. The work of audit has so largely increased that we have been obliged to materially strengthen our staff of Auditors.

The extended powers given by the Local Government (Ireland) Act, 1898, in regard to appeals against surcharges were largely exercised during the year under review, and the number of appeals has since considerably increased.

XII.—DEPARTMENTAL ARRANGEMENTS.

In our last Report we referred to the loss we had sustained by the death of our Legal Adviser, Mr. J. H. Monahan, Q.C. Following his death the work of our Legal Adviser's branch was re-organized, and Mr. G. J. B. Vanston, LL.D., B.L., was appointed to succeed Mr. Monahan.

Our Staff of Permanent General and Medical Inspectors was increased by the appointment of Mr. E. A. Saunderson and Dr. E. Coey Bigger, respectively; and the following gentlemen were appointed Temporary Inspectors, viz.:—Dr. J. Cooper Stawell, Medical; Mr. A. J. Pentland, Engineering; and Mr. Barnewall Crofton, Mr. J. Wilson Lynch, and Captain C. L. Connellan, for work under the Labourers Acts.

Dr. Stawell and Mr. Pentland, we deeply regret to have to report, died from illness contracted in the discharge of their duties, both gentlemen having, during their brief tenure of office, given evidence of marked ability and assiduous devotion to duty. Dr. Stawell was succeeded by Dr. Brendan MacCarthy, and Mr. Pentland by Mr. A. D. Price, M.A., I. M. Inst., C.E.

Mr. C. H. O'Connor, Major G. M. Eccles, Mr. J. A. Baker, and Mr. J. L. King were appointed permanent Auditors: Mr. J. More O'Ferrall was appointed a temporary Auditor, in place of an Auditor assigned for Adjustment work; and Colonel O'Hara, ex-Auditor, was re-called to service for a period of five months to meet a temporary pressure.

We were enabled to dispense with the services of certain officers appointed under Section 122 (1) of the Local Government (Ireland) Act, 1898, and also with the services of Colonel Studdert and Mr. C. Pelly, ex-Auditors, who had been re-called to fill the places of two Auditors seconded under the arrangements made in pursuance of that Section.

The Vaccine Department was re-organised on the understanding that the expenditure in connection therewith should not exceed £1,200 a year, and Dr. E. J. MacWeeney was appointed Bacteriologist for the year.

We employed Mr. J. E. Brunker, M.A., as a Pharmaceutical Chemist to advise us in matters connected with the expenditure of Boards of Guardians on Medicines, &c.

- (ii.) Local and Special Orders (arranged according to date).

LOCAL GOVERNMENT BOARD FOR IRELAND.

To the Council of the Administrative County of Antrim; To the Secretary of the said Council: To the Council of the Rural District of Larne: To the Clerk of the Council of the said Rural District: and to all others whom it may concern :

WHEREAS, by sub-section (1) of section eighty-two of the Local Government (Ireland) Act, 1898, it is enacted that it shall be the duty of every county and district council according to their respective powers, to keep all public works maintainable at the cost of their county or district in good condition and repair, and to take all steps necessary for that purpose :

And Whereas, it is further enacted by sub-section (3) of the said section eighty-two of the said Local Government (Ireland) Act, 1898, that if any county council complain that a district council have failed to perform any such duty as aforesaid, the complaining council may, without prejudice to any other remedy, appeal to the Local Government Board, and section fifteen of the Public Health Act, 1896, shall apply, with the necessary modifications, in like manner as where default is made by a sanitary authority :

And Whereas, it is enacted in effect by the said section fifteen of the Public Health (Ireland) Act, 1896, modified as directed by the said sub-section (3) of the said Local Government (Ireland) Act, 1898, that if the Local Government Board for Ireland are satisfied that a district council has been guilty of the alleged default they shall make an order limiting a time for the performance of the duty which the district council has failed to perform :

And Whereas, it was the duty of the Rural District Council of Larne (hereinafter referred to as the Rural District Council) to take all steps necessary for keeping in good condition and repair 650 perches of the road from Glenarm to Broughshane, between Glenarm Church and the Iron Ore Mines in the Townland of Demesue :

And Whereas, it was a step necessary for such keeping in good condition and repair of the said road that the Rural District Council should at their quarterly meeting, held on the fourteenth day of August, 1899, on the report and recommendation of the County Surveyor, formulate a proposal for keeping in good condition and repair the said road :

And Whereas, the Council of the Administrative County of Antrim (hereinafter referred to as the County Council) have complained to Us, the Local Government Board for Ireland, that the Rural District Council failed, at their quarterly meeting, held on the fourteenth day of August, 1899, to formulate an adequate or sufficient proposal for keeping in good condition and repair the said road, and that the said Rural District Council also failed after the matter had been referred back to them to make an adequate or sufficient proposal for the repair of the said road at either of their quarterly meetings, held on the thirteenth day of November, 1899, and the twelfth day of February, 1900, respectively :

And Whereas We, the said Local Government Board, after due inquiry held, are satisfied that, as alleged by the County Council, the Rural District Council failed to formulate such proposal as aforesaid :

Now, Therefore, We the Local Government Board for Ireland, do hereby order and direct as follows :—

The Rural District Council of Larne shall, at their first quarterly meeting held next after the date of the present Order, at which a recommendation is made by the County Surveyor regarding the road hereinafter specified, and not later, formulate an adequate and sufficient proposal to repair 650 perches of the road from Glenarm to Broughshane, between Glenarm Church and the Iron Ore Mines in the Townland of Demesue, and such proposal shall provide for a substantial general repair of the whole length of the road as soon as possible after the date of the then next ensuing quarterly meeting of the County Council of Antrim, and the proper maintenance of the road thereafter until the thirty-first day of March, 1901, in conformity with the report and recommendation of the County Surveyor.

Scaled with our Seal, this Fourth day of May Hundred.

ADJUSTMENT ORDER.

Mitchelstown and Fermoy Railway Guarantee.

WHEREAS, it is directed by Article 18 of the Local Government (Transitory Provisions) (No. 2) Order, 1898 (hereinafter referred to as the Order in Council), that where a barony or any other area liable under any guarantee is divided between two or more counties or county districts the Local Government Board for Ireland shall, by an Order or Orders, apportion and adjust such guarantee between the divided parts of the barony or area affected as the case may be, and such adjustment may be made to vary in any manner in which the amount of the guarantee or liability may vary :

And Whereas, it is further directed by the same article of the Order in Council that such Order or Orders of the said Local Government Board shall contain such consequential provisions as that Board may deem necessary with respect to the transfer or retention of any property, duties, and liabilities, with or without any conditions :

And Whereas, by the Mitchelstown and Fermoy Light Railway Order, 1885 (hereinafter referred to as the Light Railway Order)—confirmed by the Tramways (Ireland) Provisional Order (Mitchelstown and Fermoy) Confirmation Act, 1885, the barony of Condons and Clangibbon, and a portion of the barony of Fermoy were made liable to a guarantee in respect of a paid up capital not exceeding £60,000 (hereinafter referred to as the guarantee) in favour of the undertaking referred to therein (and hereinafter called the undertaking) :

And Whereas, by the operation of the Local Government (Ireland) Act, 1898, the said barony of Condons and Clangibbon and the said portion of the barony of Fermoy so made liable to the guarantee are divided between the Rural District of Fermoy, the Urban district of Fermoy, the Rural District of Mitchelstown No. 1, and the Rural District of Mallow; and the business of presentment sessions for the said baronies has been transferred to the councils of the said county districts so far as respects their several districts :

And Whereas, by clause 11 of the Light Railway Order, confirmed as aforesaid, it is directed in effect that the said barony of Condons and Clangibbon, and the said barony of Fermoy, shall be represented in the direction and supervision of the affairs and finance of the Mitchelstown and Fermoy Light Railway Company, Limited (hereinafter referred to as the Company) so far as relates to the undertaking by two baronial directors, one such director being elected annually by the presentment sessions for each of the said baronies held previous to the Spring Assizes in each year, and that each of the baronial directors so elected shall hold office for the period of one year :

And Whereas We, the said Local Government Board, deem it necessary that certain provisions should be made with respect to the election of directors of the Company and other matters consequential upon the division of the said barony and portion of a barony between the aforesaid county districts, and the transfer of the councils of the said districts of the business of presentment sessions for the said baronies so far as respects the said districts :

And Whereas, by clause 35 of the Light Railway Order it is directed that it shall be the duty of the Grand Jury of the County of Cork to appoint at each Spring Assizes an auditor for the purpose of auditing the accounts of the undertaking; and the business of the said Grand Jury has been transferred by section 4 of the Local Government

(Ireland) Act, 1898, to the council of the administrative County of Cork (hereinafter referred to as the county council):

Now, Therefore, We, the Local Government Board for Ireland, in exercise of the powers given to Us by the Order in Council, do hereby order and direct as follows, that is to say:—

1. The liability of the portion of the chargeable area situate in the Rural District of Mallow in respect of the guarantee with reference to an amount of paid-up capital not exceeding Twenty-six Pounds, shall be transferred to the Rural District of Mitchelstown No. 1; and the guarantee shall be apportioned between the several county districts named in the Schedule hereunto annexed in the manner therein set forth.

2. In lieu of the baronial directors to be elected under the provisions of clause 11 of the Light Railway Order there shall be elected annually two persons (hereinafter called district directors) to represent the councils of the several county districts named in the Schedule as aforesaid, and such district directors shall hold office until the election of their successors in manner hereinafter provided.

3. The district directors shall be elected by a joint committee of the Councils aforesaid, appointed annually and consisting of Four members of the council of the Rural District of Fermoy;
One member of the council of the Urban District of Fermoy;
Three members of the council of the Rural District of Mitchelstown No. 1.

4. The several members of the joint committee shall be appointed in the proportion above set forth by each council respectively at its first quarterly meeting in every year: provided that in the year 1900 such appointments shall be made by each council respectively at a meeting specially summoned for the purpose, and held within one month of the date of this Order, and each member of the joint committee appointed at such meeting so summoned shall hold office until the first quarterly meeting in the year 1901 of the council appointing him.

5. The joint committee shall, at a meeting held within one month of the latest day on which any appointment of a member of such committee can, in accordance with the foregoing provisions of this Order, be made, elect the district directors.

6. If a district director, after his election and before the expiration of his term of office, shall die or resign, or shall cease to be a director for any other reason, the joint committee may elect in his place another person to be a district director, and any person so elected shall continue in office as a district director only so long as the person in whose place he has been elected might have so continued; provided that no such vacancy occurring after the 31st day of December shall be filled until the ordinary annual election of district directors.

7. It shall be the duty of the county council to appoint an auditor under clause 35 of the Light Railway Order at their first quarterly meeting in each year.

8. A vacancy in the representation of a district council on the joint committee may be filled by such council at a meeting of which due notice shall be given.

9. The meetings of the joint committee shall be summoned by the clerk of the council of the Rural District of Fermoy, who shall give at least three clear days' notice of the time and place of meeting to each member of such committee.

10. The joint committee shall elect a chairman, and in case of an equal number of votes being given for two or more persons at the election of chairman, the committee shall decide by lot which of such persons shall be chairman; in any other case of equality of votes the chairman shall have a second or casting vote.

11. If from any cause the appointment of a member or members of the joint committee is not made at the first quarterly meeting of a district council, or the election of a district director is not held by the joint committee within the time prescribed by this Order, the Local Government Board for Ireland may make such Order or Orders as may be necessary to enable such appointment to be made at any other meeting or such election to be held within any other specified time.

12. The expression "first quarterly meeting" shall mean the quarterly meeting held next after the first day of January in any year.

And whereas it is further provided by the same Article of the said Order of 1898, that such order or orders of the Local Government Board for Ireland shall contain such consequential provisions as that Board may deem necessary, with respect to the transfer or retention of any property, duties, and liabilities, with or without any conditions :

And whereas by the Tramways (Ireland) Provisional Order Confirmation (Clogher Valley) Act, 1884 (hereinafter called the Act of 1884) confirming an Order made on the 26th day of May, 1884, by the Lord Lieutenant and Privy Council in Ireland entitled the Clogher Valley Tramway Order, 1884, certain baronies and other areas in the counties of Fermanagh and Tyrone respectively, were made liable to guarantees in favour of the undertaking referred to therein :

And whereas by the operation of the Local Government (Ireland) Act, 1898, the administrative counties of Fermanagh and Tyrone have been divided into county districts, and it is necessary to apportion and adjust the said guarantees between such districts, and to make provision for the transfer of certain duties, consequential upon such apportionment and adjustment :

Now, therefore, We, the Local Government Board for Ireland, do hereby order and direct :—

1. The guarantee of one-sixth of the entire paid-up capital of the undertaking (which capital is limited to the sum of £132,000) chargeable upon the parish of Aghavea, and part of the parish of Aughalurcher, situated in the barony of Magherastephana, and upon part of the parish of Enniskillen, situated in the barony of Tyrkenney, shall be apportioned between those portions of the area charged, which are situated in the county districts of Enniskillen No. 1 Rural, and Lisnaskea, comprised in the administrative county of Fermanagh, in the manner set forth in the Schedule A to this Order.

2. The guarantee of five-sixths of the paid-up capital of the undertaking (which capital is limited to the sum of £132,000) chargeable upon the baronies of Lower Dungannon and Clogher (excepting the townlands in the electoral division of Foremas and the parish of Donacavey, and also excepting the townland of Mountstewart), shall be apportioned between those portions of the said baronies which are situated respectively in the county districts of Clogher and Dungannon Rural, comprised in the administrative county of Tyrone, in the manner set forth in the Schedule B to this Order.

3. The provisions contained in Clause 32 of the "Clogher Valley Tramway Order, 1884," as confirmed by the Act of 1884, shall be varied in the following manner :—

- (a) (1.) The district councils of the county districts of Lisnaskea and Enniskillen No. 1 Rural, shall at the first quarterly meeting held in the year 1901, and in each subsequent year, elect from their number six members and one member respectively, to form a joint committee for the purpose of appointing two district directors to represent such districts, and each member of the joint committee shall hold office until his successor is appointed in the following year.

- (2.) The joint committee shall at a meeting held within one month of the date of its formation in the year 1901, and subsequently from time to time at a duly convened meeting, elect two district directors to hold office for such period as the joint committee appointing may by resolution direct. The joint committee may from time to time, at a duly convened meeting remove any director whom it has appointed in pursuance of its power of appointment, and may appoint another director in his room, and may from time to time fill up any vacancy in the office of such district director.

- (3.) The district councils of the county districts of Clogher and Dungannon Rural shall at the first quarterly meeting held in the year 1901, and subsequently from time to time at a quarterly meeting, elect four and two district directors respectively, each to hold office for such period as the district council appointing may by resolution direct. Each such district council may from time to time at a quarterly meeting remove any director whom it has appointed in pursuance of its power of appointment, and may appoint another director in his room, and may from time to time fill up any vacancy in the office of such district director.

And the said councils may, respectively, from time to time at a quarterly meeting by resolution fill any vacancy in the said offices of district auditor or district delegate, or remove any such district auditor or district delegate, and appoint any other person in his room.

5. It shall be the duty of the county councils of Fermanagh and Tyrone each to appoint, under clause 37 of the Clogher Valley Tramway Order, 1884, as confirmed by the Act of 1884, an auditor at their first quarterly meeting in each year for the purpose mentioned therein.

7. A vacancy in the representation of a district council on the joint committee may be filled by the district council at a meeting of which due notice shall be given.

(Adjustment Order—New Ross Bridge).

THE LOCAL GOVERNMENT BOARD FOR IRELAND.

Adjustment Order under Article 18 of the Local Government (Transitory Provisions) (No. 2) Order, 1898.

To the Council of the Administrative County of Wexford: To the Council of the Administrative County of Kilkenny: To the Secretaries of the said Councils; and to all others whom it may concern:

WHEREAS by sub-sections (1), (2), and (5) of Article 18 of the Local Government (Transitory Provisions), (No. 2) Order, 1898, made in pursuance of section One Hundred and Six of the Local Government

(Ireland) Act, 1898, (which Act, and any orders made under Part Six thereof, are hereinafter referred to collectively as the Act), it is directed as follows:

18.—(1.) Where, under the provisions of the Act or any order made or thing done in pursuance of the Act within twelve months after the passing thereof, whether by reason of an alteration in the boundaries of any county or any district union or part of a county, or by reason of any alteration in the method of assessing the poor rate, or of raising the charges heretofore levied off any area, or of any transfer of business by or in pursuance of the Act, or otherwise by reason of anything contained in the Act, any change is caused in the area which is to bear any particular charge or expense, or where any matter is declared by the Act to be the subject of a matter of adjustment, the Local Government Board, as soon as may be after the passing of the Act, or the making of such order or the doing of such thing, but after due inquiry and communication with the various authorities concerned, shall by any order or orders apportion and adjust any property, income, debts, liabilities, and expenses of any area or local authority affected by such alteration.

(2.) Any such order may be varied by the Local Government Board if satisfied that any error has been made therein, but unless so varied shall be final, and all the provisions of the Act respecting adjustments and sums payable therefor and matters which may be done by such adjustment or by an order altering boundaries shall apply for the purposes of this article.

* * * * *

(5.) An order under this Article shall contain such consequential provisions as the Local Government Board may deem necessary with respect to the transfer or retention of any property, duties, and liabilities with or without any conditions, and for the joint use of any property, and for the transfer of any duties, whether of any council or officer, and for the payment of any sums by any authorities affected by any adjustment under this section, and for the funds out of which the same are to be paid.

And whereas the New Ross Bridge was at the time of the passing of the Act situate between the Counties of Kilkenny and Wexford:

And whereas the Grand Juries of the Counties of Kilkenny and Wexford respectively were in the habit before the passing of the Act of presenting for equal moieties of the sums necessary for the maintenance and repair of the said New Ross Bridge, and for the salary of the caretaker thereof:

And whereas by an Order under our Seal, bearing date the First day of November, 1898, and made in pursuance of the Act, within twelve months after the passing thereof, We the Local Government Board for Ireland, did alter the boundaries of the said Counties of Kilkenny and Wexford, in such manner that the said New Ross Bridge is now wholly situate within the said County of Wexford:

And whereas by such alteration of the boundaries of the said Counties a change has been caused in the area which is to bear the charges necessary for the maintenance and repair of the said New Ross Bridge, and the salary of the caretaker thereof:

And whereas in consequence of such change of area as aforesaid, it is necessary that an adjustment should be made in respect of the said charges between the Council of the Administrative County of Kilkenny (hereinafter referred to as the County Council of Kilkenny) and the Council of the Administrative County of Wexford (hereinafter referred to as the County Council of Wexford):

And whereas We have made due inquiry, and have communicated with the various authorities concerned:

Now, therefore, We the Local Government Board for Ireland do hereby in pursuance of the Act, order and direct as follows, that is to say:—

1. The County Council of Wexford shall maintain and repair the New Ross Bridge (including the roadway upon the said Bridge) in like manner as they maintain and repair any other public work in their county, the cost of the maintenance and repair of which is leviable wholly off the said county, and shall pay the salary of the caretaker thereof as a county-at-large charge.
2. The County Council of Kilkenny shall pay annually to the County Council of Wexford such sum as the Secretary of the latter Council shall certify to be equivalent to half the sum actually expended during the local financial year, upon the maintenance and repair of the said Bridge and the roadway upon the same; and also a sum equivalent to half the sum certified as having been actually paid as salary to the Caretaker thereof; and the sums so payable by the County Council of Kilkenny shall be levied by that Council as county-at-large charges; provided that the said last-mentioned Council may resolve to levy the said sum without any proposal of a Proposal Committee.
3. The Secretary of the County Council of Wexford shall, not later than ten days after the close of each local financial year, send to the County Council of Kilkenny a certificate of the amounts payable by the latter Council under Article 2 of this Order; and that Council shall pay the amounts so payable at their quarterly meeting held next after the day on which such certificate is received; provided that if such day is later than five days before the day fixed for such quarterly meeting the said amounts shall be paid by the Council at their next subsequent quarterly meeting.
4. All sums which would have been payable by either of the aforesaid County Councils under the provisions of this Order during or in respect of the financial year ending the 31st day of March, 1900, if the said Order had then been in operation, shall be paid as soon as may be after the date hereof, in the manner hereinbefore provided, and the certificate of the Secretary of the County Council of Wexford of the amounts payable by the County Council of Kilkenny under this Article shall be conclusive evidence of such amounts.
5. As respects the financial year ending the 31st day of March, 1901, subject as in the preceding Article mentioned, this Order shall be deemed to have been in operation as from the 1st day of April, 1900.

6. All sums payable by either of the aforesaid County Councils under Articles 4 and 5 of this Order, in respect of work done or services rendered before the date hereof shall be deemed to have become due in the second half of the local financial year ending the 31st day of March, 1901.

No. 36,058 : 1900.—Miscellaneous.

Local Government Board,
Dublin, 12th July, 1900.

SIR,—With reference to previous correspondence on the subject of Stamp Duties payable by County and District Councils and Boards of Guardians in Ireland on bonds and other instruments executed by them in the discharge of the duties devolving on them under the Local Government (Ireland) Act, 1898, I am directed by the Local Government Board for Ireland to state that they have been in communication with the Board of Inland Revenue on the subject, and have now been furnished by that department with a copy of the opinion of the Law Officers of the Crown on the points raised.

It appears that all instruments are exempted from Stamp Duty which are executed by or to any of the bodies constituted under the Local Government (Ireland) Act, 1898, for the purpose of administering the Poor Rate, or performing any of the duties transferred to these bodies from grand juries or presentment sessions, but the exemptions from Stamp Duty contained in Section 96 of the Irish Poor Relief Act, 1838, and in Section 168 of the Grand Jury Act, 1836, do not apply to all classes of instruments given by or to these public bodies.

Section 168 of the Grand Jury Act, 1836, as adapted by the Local Government (Adaptation of Irish Enactments) Order, 1899, must be read with and as part of the Local Government (Ireland) Act, 1898, and the expression "public work" in that section must receive the meaning given to it by Section 109 of the latter Act.

A bond or instrument executed pursuant to Article 18 (3) of the Local Government (Procedure of Councils) Order, 1899, appears to be exempted from Stamp Duty, inasmuch as the new bond or instrument is substituted for the "Recognizance" specified in Section 168 of the Grand Jury Act, 1836.

The Board of Inland Revenue state, however, that, as the objects for which instruments are given are elements in the consideration of the question of their liability to Stamp Duty, no general ruling can be given with regard to their liability to Stamp Duty or otherwise; and in case of doubt the local authority concerned would do well to communicate with that department.

No. 132/M; 1900.—Miscellaneous.

Local Government Board,

Dublin, 20th August, 1900.

SIR,—I am directed by the Local Government Board for Ireland to state that, as inquiries have been addressed to them on the subject of the limit placed on the expenditure on roads under Section 27 (2) of the Local Government (Ireland) Act, 1898, they deem it well to point out that a rural district council should not formulate proposals in respect of roads at their quarterly meetings to be held in any one financial year ended in March, the total amount of which, together with the yearly amount of the current contracts for maintenance of roads, including main roads, would exceed the statutory limit.

In case, however, the proposals for executing new works in respect of roads are to be defrayed by means of loans approved by the Local Government Board, the annual instalments by which these loans are to be repayable, including interest, should be included when calculating the amount of the current road expenditure, and not the total amount of the proposal in such cases.

Where it is found that the amount of the proposals in respect of roads under the above-mentioned conditions, formulated by a rural district council, together with the yearly amount of the above-named contracts, exceeds or is likely to exceed the statutory limit of expenditure, the Board consider the county council concerned should, for the purpose of Section 27 (2) of the Local Government Act, deal first with the proposals for works of maintenance, and approve of such proposals of this kind as are required to maintain the roads in the rural district in good condition and repair. When they have disposed of proposals for works of maintenance, the council should proceed to consider the proposals made by the district council in respect of new works, and if the limit of expenditure would be exceeded were these all to be approved of, the county council may select and approve of those they consider most necessary, and reject the others; or they may refer the proposals back to the district council; or they may proceed partly in one way and partly in the other.

No. 31 M. 1901.—Miscellaneous.

Local Government Board, Dublin,

26th February, 1901.

SIR,—I am directed by the Local Government Board for Ireland to inform the county council that they have had under careful consideration the representations made from time to time by the various councils and other local bodies as to the best means of dealing with the question of the maintenance and treatment of "chronic lunatics, not dangerous to themselves or others," which as the council are aware, has been placed upon a new footing by Section 76 of the Local Government (Ireland) Act, 1898. The cost of lunatics in asylums, which was formerly defrayed out of county cess, and of those in workhouses, which always fell upon the poor rate, is now borne by the same ratepayers and the county council is the rating authority in both cases.

There are over 4,000 of these chronic lunatics scattered about in the various union workhouses of Ireland, where they cannot, from the nature of the case, be properly looked after. In some workhouses no special attendants are appointed, and in others the duty is entrusted to inexperienced persons. The wages offered are usually too low to attract competent candidates, while the work is most trying and of a kind to require unremitting attention.

The district asylums, which are much overcrowded, also contain a considerable number of chronic lunatics, many of whom are scarcely distinguishable from those in the workhouses. A "fully equipped lunatic asylum," to use the language of the Local Government Act, is a costly institution. The number of known lunatics has long been on the increase, and, to avoid the necessity for constant building, an attempt was made by the Lunatic Asylums (Ireland) Act, 1875, to transfer chronic cases to the workhouses, leaving the patients still under the supervision of the asylum authorities. This Act has been inoperative for several reasons. It was felt that the workhouse was not a proper place for these unfortunate people. The double jurisdiction presented a difficulty, and so did the division of expenses between the county cess and the poor rate.

The following courses are now open to a county council, who should consider how any action of theirs might affect both asylums and workhouses:—

1. To build a separate auxiliary asylum for chronic harmless lunatics, with a resident medical superintendent, and at least one assistant medical officer (Local Government Act, Section 84).

2. To add, subject to the Lord Lieutenant's direction, by the erection of buildings less elaborate than the original ones, a new department to an existing asylum, and to place it under the resident medical superintendent of that asylum.

3. To acquire and adapt some workhouse or other building, either as a separate auxiliary asylum, or, if the Lord Lieutenant shall so direct, as a department of some existing asylum.

The maximum capitation grant to be allowed out of the local taxation (Ireland) Account will be 2s. a week for every lunatic supported in any such auxiliary asylum (Local Government Act, Section 76 (1) and Section 58 (2) (c.)). No such grant is given on account of the chronic lunatics in workhouses.

The county council may now (Local Government Act, Section 76 (2)) apply to the Local Government Board to make such an amalgamation of unions as would free some existing workhouse for the purpose of an auxiliary asylum, and the Local Government Board may, after communication with the guardians concerned, carry such an amalgamation into effect. Where more than one county is served by the same district asylum, their councils may combine for the purpose of providing an auxiliary asylum.

Humanity demands the removal of chronic lunatics from workhouses, and the Local Government Board hope that every county council will seriously consider the question. In order to assist their deliberations, the Board are now making inquiries as to what may be thought possible in the way of amalgamating unions.

The initiative rests with the county councils; and it must depend largely on local considerations which of the courses indicated above may best be taken, having regard both to the welfare of the unfortunate people concerned, and to the interests of the ratepayers. It may be doubtful, at least in some cases, whether the erection of buildings specially fitted for the reception of chronic lunatics would not be cheaper in the end than the adaptation of old ones, originally built for a different purpose.

I am to request that you will be so good as to place the subject of this communication in the Agenda Paper when issuing the summons for the next meeting of the county council, under the provisions of Article 36 (10) (VI.) of the Schedule to the Local Government (Application of Enactments) Order, 1898.

Your obedient servant,

No. 44/M/1901.—Miscellaneous.

Local Government Board,

Dublin, 12th March, 1901.

SIR.—With reference to their circular letter of the 14th of May last, relating to the qualification of tenants of cottages erected under the Labourers (Ireland) Acts to act as Rural District Councillors, I am directed by the Local Government Board for Ireland to state that, in accordance with the undertaking given in the House of Commons by the late President of the Board that steps would be taken to obtain a judicial decision on this point, the Board recently took proceedings at Petty Sessions against a Rural District Councillor in Guenard, who was tenant of a cottage under these Acts.

The Justices at Petty Sessions held that a tenant of a labourer's cottage was concerned in a bargain or contract with the Rural District Council, and was therefore disqualified, under Article 12 (4) (e) of the Schedule to the Local Government (Application of Enactments) Order, 1898, for being a Rural District Councillor.

A case was, however, stated for the King's Bench Division of the High Court, and the Court have now decided that the agreement entered into by the tenant was a "lease" within the exception specified in sub-section (5) (a) of Article 12 above referred to, and that the Justices were wrong in point of law.

The effect of this decision is that no legal disqualification for the office of Councillor attaches to a person by reason of being the tenant of a labourer's cottage.

I am Sir,

Your obedient Servant,

H. M. SWAINE, Secretary.

APPENDIX B.

ORDERS, CIRCULARS, &c., under the Poor Relief, &c., Acts.

WHEREAS in pursuance of an Order under the Seal of the Local Government Board for Ireland, bearing date the Twenty-fourth day of February, 1888, a school has been established at Trim, in the county

And whereas in pursuance of an Order under the Seal of the said Local Government Board, bearing date the Twenty-seventh day of February, 1893, a school has been established at Glin, in the county of Limerick, for the purpose of the maintenance and education of children not above the age of fifteen years, being inmates of the workhouses of the Unions of Croom, Kilmallock, Limerick, Listowel, Newcastle, and Rathkeale, respectively :

Local Government Board, Dublin,
10th July, 1900.

SIR,—The Local Government Board for Ireland have had before them resolutions recently adopted by certain Boards of Guardians in Ireland proposing that the Teachers of Workhouse Schools, who have hitherto been paid results fees from the rates, should be given increments to their annual salaries to compensate them for any loss arising from the abolition of the results system; and, with reference thereto, I am to state, for the Guardians' information, that the Local Government Board do not consider that fixed increments to the salaries of the Teachers in Workhouse Schools should be made by Boards of Guardians, in lieu of the results fees heretofore given from the rates upon the certificates of the Commissioners of National Education.

The Local Government Board would, however, be prepared to consent to a bonus equal to the average of the past three years' results fees being given to the Teachers of Workhouse Schools after each examination, if the report of the Inspector upon the school was in every respect satisfactory.

SIR,—I am directed by the Local Government Board for Ireland to state, for the information of the Board of Guardians, that, having regard to the infectious nature of Pulmonary Tuberculosis (Consumption), it is highly desirable, in the opinion of the Local Government Board, that provision should be made in Workhouse Infirmeries for the treatment of persons suffering from this disease in separate wards—that is to say, wards to which patients otherwise affected are not admitted; and I am to request that the Guardians will be so good as to give this matter their early and careful consideration.

The Inspectors of the Local Government Board have from time to time called attention to this matter, and the Guardians are now most strongly advised by the Board to have steps taken to isolate consumptive patients. It is requested that the Guardians will obtain a report in writing from the Medical Officer of the Workhouse, in which he should state what steps he has taken, or now proposes to take, in this direction, and also what precautions are being adopted in the wards to guard against the spread of infection.

Local Government Board,

Dublin, 23rd January, 1901.

SIR,—I am directed by the Local Government Board for Ireland to draw attention to the provisions of Article 17 of their General Regulations of the 27th April, 1899, made in pursuance of the Pauper Children (Ireland) Act, 1898, by which the Board of Guardians are required to appoint a Committee of Ladies, not necessarily composed of ladies who are Guardians, to visit each house at which any child is boarded out under the Regulations and to report such visits to the Guardians; and I am to request that you will be so good as to furnish the Local Government Board with a return showing the number of children, if any, boarded out in the Union, together with the names of the ladies forming, and the duties discharged by, the Committee appointed to visit the homes of such children.

If the Board of Guardians have any children boarded out and have overlooked the obligation to appoint a Ladies' Committee, which, as above stated, devolves on them under the Regulations, the Local Government Board trust that they will at once take the necessary steps for the appointment of such a Committee.

I am, Sir,

Your obedient Servant,

H. M. SWAINE,

Secretary.

The Clerk of each Union.

No. 53,059.—1900.—Miscellaneous.

Local Government Board, Dublin,

28th January, 1901.

SIR,—I am directed by the Local Government Board for Ireland to draw the attention of the Board of Guardians to the terms of the footnote to Form 27 (Order Check Book for Outdoor Relief in kind) of "The Union Accounts Order, 1899," in which it is stated that "The goods hereby ordered may be obtained from any trader at the option of the poor person in whose favour the order is issued."

Some misapprehension appears to have arisen as to the exact meaning to be attached to the words "any trader" in the foot-note referred to, and the Local Government Board, accordingly, think it right to point out that these words should be interpreted as though they were followed by the words "who is not a Guardian," inasmuch as, in supplying goods ordered as outdoor relief, any guardian would be concerned in a contract entered into with the Board of Guardians and thereby be disqualified for being a member of the Board of Guardians, under Article 12 (4) of the Schedule to the Local Government (Application of Enactments) Order, 1898.

I am, Sir,

Your obedient Servant,

H. M. SWAINE,

Secretary.

The Clerk of each Union.

II.—CIRCULARS.

No. 86—M.—1900.—Miscellaneous.

Local Government Board,

Dublin, 11th May, 1900.

SIR,—The Local Government Board for Ireland desire to inform the Board of Guardians that Small Pox is at present prevalent in some of the large Towns in England; and as there is a probability that the disease may spread to this country the Local Government Board think it well to point out that the obligation of enforcing the Vaccination Acts devolves upon the Guardians, who should at once give special attention to this important duty.

The Local Government Board assume that the lists of vaccination defaulters furnished by the Dispensary Medical Officers at the end of the past Quarter are yet in the hands of the Relieving Officers, or other persons employed by the Guardians to serve notices on the defaulters; the lists in question should now be resubmitted to the Guardians for their final directions respecting the persons still in default.

The present month is a very favourable time for the carrying out of vaccinations; and adequate supplies of glycerinated calf lymph may be obtained gratis by the Medical Officers on application to the Secretary of the Local Government Board's Vaccine Department, No. 45, Upper Sackville Street, Dublin.

The Local Government Board trust that the Guardians will impress on their officers the importance of securing to the infant population in the Union the protection against Small Pox afforded by efficient vaccination.

I am, Sir,

Your obedient servant,

H. M. SWAINE,

The Clerk of each Union.

Secretary.

No. 29 M.—1901.—MISCELLANEOUS.

Local Government Board,

Dublin. 25th February, 1901.

SIR,—With reference to their Circular of 17th February, 1899, I am directed by the Local Government Board for Ireland to transmit, herewith, for the information and guidance of the Board of Guardians a revised Form of Tender and Prescribed List of Medicines, and also a revised Form of Tender and Prescribed List of Medical and Surgical Appliances. These Lists have been amplified, and several articles which were formerly on the List of Medical and Surgical Appliances have been transferred to the list of Medicines, being articles which the Board find it is usual and proper for druggists to supply. A sufficient number of copies of these forms should be at once printed so that they may be available when tenders for supplies for the year beginning on the 1st April next are being invited. Owing to the delay and inconvenience that in some cases occurred in procuring tender forms, the Board think it right to state that a supply of the forms will be kept in stock by Messrs. Thom & Co., Dublin, from whom they can be purchased by the Guardians if they have not otherwise made arrangements.

The Guardians will observe that, in future, no person is eligible to receive a contract for Medical and Surgical Appliances unless he is either a manufacturer or dealer therein who satisfies the Local Government Board that he has in stock a full assortment of the articles on the accompanying list. The Board would draw special attention to the fact that, under the form of tender as altered, the Contractor is entitled to be paid, according to the Schedule of prices attached to the tender form, for all empty packages, hampers, jars, bottles, &c., not returned within a period of six months from the date of receipt thereof. This provision became necessary in consequence of the representations made to the Board as to the serious loss sustained by the Contractors through the failure of the Guardians to return the empty packages. The Board desire to state that in no case will recoupment be allowed in respect of the cost of these empties, and the Guardians should take effective steps to ensure their return. The Medical Officers should be directed, when ordering each quarterly supply of drugs, &c., to make an accurate list of the empty bottles, jars, hampers, &c., at the Dispensary; and the caretaker of the Dispensary, or some other responsible person, should be instructed to pack securely the articles for despatch to the Contractor. A list of bottles, jars, &c., appended hereto will facilitate the Medical Officer in making out his return. A supply of these forms should be procured and sent to each Medical Officer not later than 1st April, 1901.

The Board desire to add that representatives of the drug trade who waited on them have complained of the delay on the part of the Guardians in the settlement of the medicine accounts. It was stated that, whereas Boards of Guardians undertook, by bond, to pay for medicine thirty days after delivery, the general custom is to take six months' credit. The Board request that all such accounts may be promptly dealt with in the manner required by the Accounts Order, and this is all the more necessary in view of the provisions of Section 51, Sub-sections 7 and 8, of the Local Government (Ireland) Act, 1898.

I am, Sir,

Your obedient servant,

H. M. SWAINE,

The Clerk of each Union.

Secretary.

Dublin, 28th March, 1901.

SIR,—I am directed by the Local Government Board for Ireland to forward, herewith, for the information of the Board of Guardians, a copy of an Order which they have made, amending Articles 35 and 36 of the Dispensary Regulations.

The conditions for recoupment from the Local Taxation (Ireland) Account, prescribed by the Local Government Board in accordance with Sec. 58 (2) (a) of the Local Government Ireland Act, 1898, will in future be those specified in Article 36 of the new Order.

The Guardians will observe that an alteration has been made in the forms of Contract for Medicines and for Medical and Surgical Appliances. A sufficient supply of the revised forms of Contract and Bond (copies enclosed) should be at once procured, and the old forms should not in future be used.

To the Officers of Customs and of the Coastguard in Ireland; To the Port Sanitary Authorities in Ireland; To the several Councils of Urban and Rural Districts named in the Schedule hereunto annexed; to all Masters of Ships; to all Pilots; and to all other Persons whom it may concern:

WHEREAS WE, the Local Government Board for Ireland, are empowered by Section 149 of the Public Health (Ireland) Act, 1878, whenever any part of Ireland appears to be threatened with or affected by any formidable epidemic or infectious disease to make, and from time to time alter and revoke Regulations for guarding against the spread of such disease and may by order declare all or any of the Regulations so made to be in force within the whole or any part or parts of the District of any Sanitary Authority and to apply to any ships or vessels whether on inland waters or on arms or parts of the sea within the jurisdiction of the Admiralty for the period in such order mentioned; and may by any subsequent order abridge or extend such period:

And whereas by Sections 1 and 4 of the Public Health Act, 1896, it is enacted that Regulations of the Local Government Board for Ireland made in pursuance of Section 149 of the Public Health (Ireland) Act, 1878, may provide for such Regulations being enforced and executed by the Officers of Customs and the officers and men employed in the Coastguard as well as by other authorities and officers, and without prejudice to the generality of the powers conferred by that Section may provide for—

Provided that, in every case where there may be reasonable cause to apprehend that the ship may be endangered by the removal of the water ballast, the Medical Officer of Health may cause any tank or other receptacle containing the water ballast to be sealed, and thenceforward, so long as the ship remains within the jurisdiction of the Sanitary Authority, no person shall without the permission of the Medical Officer of Health break or remove such seal, or discharge or remove from such tank or receptacle any part of the water ballast.

On the Sanitary Authority providing a proper supply of water for drinking and cooking purposes for persons on board any such ship, the Medical Officer of Health may direct all casks or tanks on board the ship containing water for the use of such persons to be emptied and cleansed, and the Master shall cause the said direction to be carried into effect.

Art. 23.—The Master of any ship, or any other person, shall answer truly all such questions put to him by and give all such information to any Officer of Customs or Medical Officer of Health as may be necessary for any purpose of this Order; and no person who is required in pursuance of this Order to give to the Medical Officer of Health or to notify

Art. 24.—The Sanitary Authority may appoint one or more legally qualified medical practitioners to act in the execution of this Order, either in place of or as an assistant or assistants to the Medical Officer of Health, and may pay such practitioner or practitioners reasonable remuneration for his or their services.

Art. 25.—All expenses which may be incurred by any Sanitary Authority in carrying out the provisions of this Order shall be defrayed out of a common fund to be contributed, in such proportions as the Local Government Board for Ireland shall from time to time order, by the Sanitary Authorities whose districts form part of or abut on the Port within which the provisions of this Order are to be enforced and executed by such Sanitary Authority.

PART V.

Art. 27.—Nothing in this Order shall render liable to detention, disinfection, or destruction, any article forming part of any mail (other than a parcel mail) conveyed under the authority of the Postmaster-General, or of the Postal administration of any Foreign Government, or shall prejudicially affect the delivery in due course of any such mail (other than a parcel mail) to the Post Office in accordance with the provisions of the Post Office Acts.

And whereas, by the Order, We did further direct that all expenses which might be incurred by any Board of Guardians in carrying out the provisions of the Order should be defrayed out of a common fund to be contributed, in such proportions as We should from time to time order, by the Sanitary Authorities of the urban and rural sanitary districts, as defined by the Public Health (Ireland) Act, 1878, which, or any part of which, abut on the port within which the provisions of the Order were to be enforced and executed by such Board of Guardians.

Now, therefore, We, the Local Government Board for Ireland, do hereby order and declare that the proportion of the said sum of £48 8s. 3d. to be paid to the Board of Guardians of the Galway union by each of the contributory Councils shall be the sum which is set forth in Column 2 of the Schedule to this Order opposite to the name of the district of such contributory council in Column 1 of that Schedule.

CONSENTS were given under Seal to the letting of surplus Lands by the following Sanitary Authorities in pursuance of Sections 202 and 204 of the Public Health (Ireland) Act, 1878 :—

—	Sanitary Authorities.	Date of Consent.
1	The Urban District Council of Kilmoney and Ballybrock, ...	1st June, 1900.
2	The Right Honorable the Lord Mayor, Aldermen, and Burgesses of Dublin,	25th June, 1900.

II.—CIRCULARS, &c.

No. 174 —M/1900.

Local Government Board,
Dublin, 1st October, 1900.

SIR,—In view of the outbreak of Bubonic Plague in the United Kingdom, the Local Government Board for Ireland desire to direct the particular attention of Sanitary Authorities throughout Ireland to Section 108 of the Public Health (Ireland) Act, 1878, which provides that “it shall be the duty of every Sanitary Authority to cause to be made from time to time inspection of their district with a view to ascertain what nuisances exist calling for abatement, and to enforce the provisions of this Act in order to abate the same.”

A serious responsibility rests on each Sanitary Authority at the present juncture, and the Local Government Board cannot too strongly urge the necessity for prompt and effective local sanitary administration in order that, should Bubonic Plague unfortunately be introduced into this country, the sanitary condition of the district or districts visited may be such as to prevent the diffusion of the infection.

The Board desire to impress upon Sanitary Authorities that reliance can only be placed, in the event of a visitation of Plague, upon good internal sanitary administration and scrupulous attention to the ordinary laws of health.

The principal matters the Board invite attention to are :—

(I.) The abatement of all nuisances arising from accumulations of filth, decaying vegetable refuse, privies and ashpits, and the various nuisances defined under Sections 57, 107 and following Sections of the Public Health (Ireland) Act, 1878.

(II.) The necessity for careful inspection of lodging and tenement houses with the view of seeing that there is no overcrowding, and that the premises are properly ventilated, and also of urging on the occupiers the observance of strict personal and domestic cleanliness.

(III.) The careful removal of all possible sources of pollution of existing water supplies and the prevention of such pollution.

(IV.) The provision of hospital accommodation for the reception and isolation of any cases of Bubonic Plague that may occur, and of suitable refuges for persons who may come in contact with patients suffering from the disease.

(V.) The adoption of the Infectious Disease (Notification) Act, 1889, by all Urban and Rural District Councils by whom the Act has not already been adopted.

The Board, in advising these precautionary measures, whilst they consider that there is no cause for undue alarm, are of opinion that there is every reason for increased sanitary activity; and they would remind Sanitary Authorities that effective steps in the direction above indicated will not only place their districts in the best practicable position for resisting an outbreak of Plague, but will at the same time constitute a valuable insurance against all forms of preventable disease.

The Local Government Board are anxious to give every assistance to Sanitary Authorities in endeavouring to carry out the suggestions herein contained, and with that object they have increased their staff of Medical Inspectors, and instructed them to confer with and advise Sanitary Authorities and their officers on all matters connected with sanitary administration on which they may seek to obtain information. The Board have also made arrangements for the bacterioscopic examination of any material from "Pestis" that may be sent to them for that purpose by the Medical Officers of Health.

The early recognition of the disease is of the utmost importance, and as persons suffering from "Pestis Minor," otherwise known as "Pestis Ambulans," are liable to escape observation owing to the mildness of the disease, the Board trust that the Sanitary Authorities will instruct their officers to exercise the greatest vigilance in regard to suspicious cases, and to promptly isolate the sufferers and take such measures as they may deem necessary respecting any persons who may have come into contact with the patients. Notification (by telegraph if available) of such cases should also be sent to this Department.

Enclosed will be found copies of a Memorandum which embodies the views of the Royal College of Physicians in Ireland on the subject of Plague, together with copies of Directions for obtaining and sending Material from "Pestis" for Bacterioscopic Examination; and the Board request that a copy of each of these documents may be handed to the Medical Officer of Health of each Dispensary District for his information and guidance.

I am, Sir,

Your obedient Servant,

H. M. SWAINE, Secretary.

To the Council of each County Borough, Urban District,
and Rural District.

ENCLOSURES (a) (b) (c) to foregoing Circular Letter.

BUBONIC PLAGUE.

(a.) MEMORANDUM BY THE ROYAL COLLEGE OF PHYSICIANS OF IRELAND.

I.—Description of the Disease.

Bubonic Plague is a feverish disease common to man and several of the lower animals, such as rats, mice, rabbits and guinea pigs. It is communicable from man to animals, and from animals to man, especially by inoculation. Any break in the skin or mucous membranes, however trifling, may serve for the introduction of the poison of the disease into the system. Thus a scratch or pin-prick may be infected by a common house-fly; or a flea, or other parasite, may infect through the puncture it makes in a previously sound skin.

The poison of plague is due to a bacterium and the toxins—or poisonous principles—it produces. This poison becomes virulent to an extreme degree in the presence of dirt, overcrowding, want of ventilation, and destitution. It also becomes virulent when introduced into the body of a badly-nourished, unhealthy, or intemperate individual. Hence the urgent necessity for attention to personal and home cleanliness, for good food, fresh air, free ventilation, and strict temperance. At this time, especially, the clergy of all denominations might, with advantage, urge upon the people the importance of cleanliness in the fullest sense of the word.

Symptoms of plague show themselves after a latent or incubation period of from two to eight days from the time the poison is received into the system. The victims feel weak in mind as well as in body. They are depressed. Appetite is lost. The limbs ache. There are feelings of chilliness, giddiness, and palpitations. Dull pains are felt in the groins. Then fever sets in with headache, giddiness, drowsiness, or wakefulness, or troubled dreams in sleep. Nausea and vomiting and diarrhoea may occur. The face becomes drawn and haggard, the eyes are bloodshot. The patient walks dreamily or staggers like a drunken man.

Soon the fever increases, the face looks bloated, the eyes are fixed and sunken, the mouth is dry, and thirst is intense. Then raving comes on and the sufferer passes into a state of partial or complete unconsciousness, or fits may occur.

The name "bubonic plague" is derived from the remarkable swellings of the lymphatic glands which take place, especially in the groins, but also in the armpits, and sometimes (particularly in children) at the angle of the lower jaw. There is great pain in these swellings, which often turn black, soften and burst, or slough. Bleedings may also occur from the nose, mouth, lungs, stomach, bowels, or kidneys; and the skin may become covered with purpuric spots from bleedings into its substance.

Death may take place at any time, usually between the third and fifth days of the attack; on the other hand, when patients recover, they do so slowly, tediously, and painfully.

Sometimes plague shows itself as an inflammation of the lungs (pneumonia). This is a very infectious and dangerous form, requiring great care in the management of the expectoration—the stuff which is coughed up should be at once disinfected and destroyed.

II.—Management.

Those sick of plague should be at once removed to an isolated hospital, their rooms being thoroughly cleansed and disinfected by the Sanitary Authority. The bodies of the dead should be cremated, or buried with quick lime in deep graves. Those who have been in close proximity to the sick ("contacts"), and those who have been in other ways exposed to infection ("suspects"), should be segregated in "refuges" provided by the Sanitary Authority, and closely watched until the usual period of incubation of plague has run out.

It is reassuring to know that plague, although a "catching" disease, is not nearly so taking or infectious as typhus, small-pox, scarlatina, or measles. Attendants on the sick in clean, roomy, airy hospital-wards, run little risk, provided they have an intact skin, and do not hang over the patients, or remain too long beside them.

A wholesale crusade should be made upon rats and mice in an infected or suspected district, and, above all, in vessels coming from a port where plague exists.

As the poison may possibly be swallowed in water or food contaminated with sewage or faecal matter, no food should be eaten in the raw state, while water should be used for drinking purposes only after being boiled. In consequence of the possibility of milk being diluted with infective water, it likewise should be boiled before use.

The discharges from the bowels should be disinfected and disposed of as quickly as possible. A wine-glassful of the following disinfectant mixture should be poured into the vessels used by the patient, viz. :—

Common sulphate of iron (green copperas), one ounce ;

Carbolic acid, a quarter of an ounce ;

Water, twenty fluid ounces, or one imperial pint.

Strict personal cleanliness should be practised, especially in connection with the feet, by which the poison is apt to be introduced into the system ; and the clothing should be adapted to the season and weather.

Infected bedding and all articles of clothing worn by the sick should be destroyed by fire.

All debilitating causes should be carefully avoided—such as excessive and long-continued fatigue and fasting ; overcrowding ; exposure to moist, stagnant air, or to air loaded with organic effluvia.

In order that the Sanitary Authority may obtain the earliest information as to the outbreak of plague, the disease should at once be scheduled as notifiable under the provisions of the Notification of Infectious Disease (Ireland) Act, 1889 ; and the Act should be adopted without further delay in all sanitary districts adjacent to Dublin.

As regards curative treatment, a physician should be consulted at the earliest possible moment, in order that the rapid onset and advance of the disease may be arrested, if possible, by serum-therapy, or other means, and that other necessary measures may be taken to preserve strength, combat symptoms, and avert death.

Signed, by order of the College,

[L.S.] JOHN WILLIAM MOORE, M.D., Univ. Dubl.

President.

JAMES CRAIG, M.D., Univ. Dubl.,

Fellow and Registrar.

(b.) DIRECTIONS FOR OBTAINING AND SENDING MATERIAL FROM "PESTIS" FOR BACTERIO-SCOPIC EXAMINATION.

A. From the Living—

1. Clean with soap and water, then with sublimate solution, and finally with alcohol, the last phalanx of either the second or third finger. After the alcohol has evaporated, put a piece of tape round proximal end of last phalanx, so as to make venous congestion. Prick palmar surface of same phalanx with sterile needle, and immediately pass blood coming out into two sterile capillary tubes, such as are used for collecting vaccine lymph. The tubes when charged to be hermetically sealed at both ends.

2. When there is a discharging bubo, collect fluid in capillary tubes as above. When the discharge is not of a sufficiently fluid character for this, place some of the discharge in a small (empty) glass-stoppered phial, previously well washed out with alcohol. Use a sterile forceps, glass rod or the like for manipulating the material.

3. If expectoration be obtainable, place some in a phial in the manner described in Section 2.

B. From the Dead Body—

1. Cut out any enlarged lymph gland, together with some of its surrounding tissue, and place the whole in a wide-mouthed glass-stoppered (empty) bottle, previously well washed out with alcohol. The bottle to have the stopper well secured and sealed.

2. Obtain also a piece of the spleen, proceeding in the same manner

3. All such material to be carefully packed in a stout wooden box, so that there shall be no risk of breakage, and the contents carefully wrapped in some absorbent material, so as to effectually prevent the escape of any fluid, and then addressed to "The Medical Commissioner, Bacteriological Laboratory, Local Government Board, Custom House, Dublin." [See also Regulations of Postmaster-General at foot.]

Note as to clinical aspect of case and possible source of infection should be enclosed with the material.

[EXTRACT from Regulations of Postmaster-General.]

DELETERIOUS LIQUIDS OR SUBSTANCES.

Deleterious liquids or substances, though otherwise prohibited from transmission by post, may be sent for medical examination or analysis, by Registered Letter Post under the following conditions:—

Any such liquid or substance must be enclosed in a receptacle hermetically sealed, which receptacle must itself be placed in a strong wooden, leather, or metal case in such a way that it cannot shift about, and with a sufficient quantity of some absorbent material (such as saw-dust or cotton wool) so packed about the receptacle as absolutely to prevent any possible leakage from the packet in the event of damage to the receptacle.

The packet so made up must be marked "Fragile with care," and tendered at a Post Office for transmission by Registered Letter Post, it must on no account be dropped into a letter-box, or sent by Parcel Post. These regulations will be rigidly enforced. Any postal packet of the kind found in the parcel post, or any Postal Packet of the kind, whether registered or not, found in the Letter Post not packed as directed will be at once stopped and destroyed with all its wrappings and enclosures.

Any person who sends by post a liquid or substance for medical examination or analysis otherwise than as provided by these regulations is liable to prosecution, even if he be a patient sending something to his medical adviser for his opinion, or a medical practitioner sending something to a laboratory or elsewhere.

No liquid or substance of the kind may, under any circumstances, be sent by post to or from any place outside the United Kingdom.

III. REPORTS received by the Local Government Board.

(i.) CEREBRO-SPINAL MENINGITIS.

REPORT of the Board's Medical Inspector, Dr. Edgar Flinn, F.R.C.S., D.P.H., on the outbreak of Cerebro-spinal Meningitis in Dublin.

GENTLEMEN,—I have the honour to submit, for the information of the Board, the following Report relative to the recent outbreak of cerebro-spinal meningitis that occurred in Dublin.

I have the honour to be,

Your obedient servant,

8th May, 1901.

D. EDGAR FLINN.

Cerebro-spinal meningitis in an epidemic form has not appeared in Dublin for some years. The last outbreak occurred in 1885, and was limited in extent. In 1846 several cases occurred in Dublin and Belfast simultaneously, and up to that year the disease had not previously appeared in Ireland in an epidemic form. During this outbreak many cases occurred in the South Dublin, Belfast, and Rathdown Workhouses. Those principally attacked were boys under twelve years of age. In 1865 further cases of the disease occurred in Dublin, and in the succeeding year, 1866, the disease assumed an epidemic form, which continued until the following year, and proved fatal in a large number of cases. The epidemic at that time not only raged in Dublin but also affected other parts of Ireland.

Brief History of Epidemic Cerebro-spinal Meningitis.

Professor Hirsch divides the history of epidemic cerebro-spinal meningitis into four periods. The first of these periods ranges from 1806 to 1830. In Europe the outbreak, during this period, was not very extensive. In the United States, however, this period was characterised by a widespread epidemic, lasting for over two years, and which extended to Canada.

During the second period, from 1837 to 1850, the disease appeared in France, Denmark, Italy, and Great Britain—the disease spreading widely in the first-named country. During the second period the United States was again the theatre of a widespread epidemic.

The third period mentioned by Professor Hirsch extended from 1854 to 1874, and, as he states, exhibited quite a different distribution through Europe. The countries of South and West Europe (except for an outbreak in Portugal, and one in Ireland) were spared, but in Germany, Sweden, and parts of Russia, a virulent form of the disease occurred, and was marked by great fatality. The United States during this period again experienced another outbreak.

Hirsch's fourth period extends from 1876 to 1885. During this period there was no great epidemic, but limited outbreaks were reported from various countries, notably France, Great Britain, and Ireland. In 1885 the outbreak of cerebro-spinal meningitis appeared limited to Dublin more particularly, and few cases occurred in other parts of Ireland.

The infectious nature of cerebro-spinal meningitis, it would appear, was first recognised at Geneva in 1805. The disease has no predilection for sex, but principally attacks children, and sometimes adults in the prime of life. Poverty, overcrowding, and bad sanitary conditions favour its outbreak.

conditions.

The morbid conditions observable, and that have been described, are an acute inflammatory condition of the membranes both of the brain and spinal cord, and in prolonged cases a purulent effusion into the membranes of both the brain and spinal cord has been observed. From bacteriological researches the evidence has been increasing that the exciting cause is a micro-organism first described by Leichtenstern in 1885, and called the "Diplococcus intracellularis meningitidis." This organism has been found in the nasal secretion, and through this channel it has an easy and probable means of reaching the brain.

The recent outbreak in Dublin.

The recent outbreak of cerebro-spinal meningitis in Dublin first commenced in the early portion of the month of February, 1900, though one or two cases were reported as having occurred in the month of November, 1899. The outbreak was not limited to any particular area, cases having occurred, more or less, in all the districts comprised within the Dublin Registration area.

Cerebro-spinal meningitis was placed upon the list of compulsory notifiable diseases by the Public Health Committee of Dublin for four months, viz., from May 1st to August 30th, 1900. During that time fifty-seven cases were notified, thirty-two of which occurred on the north side, and twenty-five on the south side of the city. A large number of the cases of the disease notified during this period occurred in areas that are known to be thickly populated, and in localities where the poorer classes reside. Five cases were notified from the North Dublin Union, but no case was reported as having occurred in the South Dublin Union.

Appended to this Report is a table (which Sir C. Cameron, C.B., Superintendent Medical Officer of Health of Dublin, was good enough to furnish me with), showing the date and number of notifications, and the localities.

In the earlier part of the outbreak, and during the months of February, March, April, May, and June, 1900, the number of admissions to the various city hospitals of patients suffering from cerebro-spinal meningitis was considerable, the greater number being treated in the Hardwicke, Cork-street, Mater Misericordiae, and Meath Hospitals—the total number of Admissions so far as can be ascertained reaching to about 140. In August and September the outbreak showed signs of declining, and, after inquiry, I find that a few cases of the disease were under treatment quite recently. In the table (appended), furnished to me by the courtesy of the Registrar-General for Ireland, and which shows the deaths at various ages from cerebro-spinal meningitis, it will be seen that the highest rate of mortality occurred in persons over five and under twenty years of age, and that the total number of deaths registered in the Dublin registration area, from the inception of the epidemic up to March 31st, 1901, was eighty, fifty-three of which occurred in the city of Dublin, and twenty-seven in the suburban portion of the Dublin registration area.

Owing to the absence of any notification in some of the districts immediately adjoining Dublin, as well as to the fact that cerebro-spinal meningitis was only made notifiable in the city for a very limited period, it is difficult to estimate accurately the total number of cases that may have occurred. It is, however, quite evident that the disease was prevalent throughout all the Dublin registration area, and particularly so in the more congested parts of the city. Approximately, about 300 cases would appear to have occurred in the Dublin registration area during the outbreak.

In the table of the notifications it will be seen that only in two instances did there occur more than one case in a household or building.

Outside the city area the distribution of the disease was more or less limited. A few cases occurred at Rathmines, Blackrock, Kingstown, Glasnevin, and Clontarf, and the localities principally affected in Dublin were those where the hygienic conditions were unfavourable, and where overcrowding, insufficient ventilation, and indifferent housing of the working classes is known to exist. Many cases also occurred amongst dwellers in tenement houses. The Coombe area, Francis-street, Townsend-street, Wood-street, Coleraine-street, Great Britain-street, and Dorset-street, were some of the crowded districts where a large number of cases of the disease occurred.

In this brief sketch of the distribution of epidemic cerebro-spinal meningitis in Dublin, some peculiarities are remarkable, which distinguish it from other epidemics. In a report published in the Dublin Quarterly Journal for August, 1868, by Dr. Collins, he states (referring to an outbreak that had then occurred in Dublin): "Its simultaneous appearance in places widely separated, so widely separated, indeed, as to have no channels of communication, the singular exemption, during an epidemic, of the intermediate and frequently of the surrounding districts, the great variability of its duration, of its extent and of its intensity, the irregularity of its progress, its fluctuating character manifested in frequent exacerbations and remissions, its generally admitted non-contagious, or very slightly contagious, nature, and its independence of all geographical limits, local causes, constitute it truly a disease sui generis."

A remarkably fatal type of the disease appeared in Dublin in 1866, and this outbreak was regarded as one of the most severe that had ever appeared in the North-west of Europe. The recent manifestation of the disease in Dublin has been of a comparatively mild type, though in some cases death occurred with great rapidity.

During the progress of the recent outbreak, and more especially when the disease became notifiable, active preventive measures were carried out. Prompt isolation and removal to hospital of all cases that could not be properly treated in their homes was enforced, the disinfection of dwelling-houses and rooms and bedding and clothing was strictly carried out, and instructions were given by the Medical Superintendent Officer of Health in regard to the nasal discharge from infected patients, and the burning of all linen that might be likely to convey infection. It is regrettable that the period of compulsory notification was not extended to a longer time than four months, as the outbreak has apparently not yet expended itself. It would have been more satisfactory from every point of view had the fullest information been made easily available, and every facility afforded to more accurately determine the conditions, circumstances, and places in which the disease occurred.

Appended are several tables which are of interest. They respectively show:—

(1.) The localities where cases of cerebro-spinal meningitis occurred in the city of Dublin during the period in which the disease was made notifiable.

(2.) The ages and deaths from cerebro-spinal meningitis in the Dublin registration area up to March 30th, 1901.

(3.) A return showing the number of deaths registered in the Dublin registration area from the various forms of meningitis.

(4.) A table showing the deaths from "cerebro-spinal fever" registered in Ireland in each of the four provinces from 1881-1898.

The disease would appear to have reached its climax in May and June of last year, when thirteen and twenty-three deaths were registered, as having occurred respectively, in these months. It is remarkable that no cases of the disease appear to have been notified from the better-class residential quarters of the city.

In March and April of last year, before cerebro-spinal meningitis was made compulsorily notifiable, twelve cases were notified to the Public Health Committee.

(ii.) MEMORANDUM OF THE BOARD'S MEDICAL INSPECTOR, DR. THOMAS J. BROWNE, ON THE PREVALENCE OF CEREBROSPINAL MENINGITIS IN THE MUNSTER DISTRICT DURING 1900 AND THE FIRST QUARTER OF 1901.

Cases of cerebro-spinal meningitis have been confined practically to the City of Cork, a few cases only having occurred in other parts of the district, viz. :—Dungarvan Union, three cases; Fermoy Union, two cases; and Tralee Union, one case. In March, 1900, the first case occurred in Cork city, and from then until the end of June, about 100 seizures took place, resulting in twenty-five deaths. From the latter date till the end of the year the seizures steadily declined, only ten cases being notified, and in January had disappeared, but during the months of February and March of the present year ten cases were notified. The disease was of a severe type, about forty deaths resulting from it. Children and young adults only were attacked, the mortality amongst the former being especially high. The seizures were not confined to the poorer classes, or those living under unfavourable sanitary conditions, many cases occurring in well-to-do families and in houses where no fault could be found with the sanitation. It was also a noticeable feature that the disease was not confined to any particular locality, but was distributed over every part of the city, and occurred in persons having no intercourse with each other. As far as I could learn not more than one member of a family was attacked. The nervous symptoms were well marked in all cases, but there was a general absence of purpuris or hemorrhagic eruptions.

The majority of the patients were removed to hospital for treatment, and the usual preventive measures were adopted subsequent to the disease being scheduled as a notifiable disease under the Infectious Disease (Notification) Act.

THOS. J. BROWNE,

24th April, 1901.

(iii.) CREAMERIES, ENTERIC FEVER, &c.

OBSERVATIONS on the Relation of "Creameries" to the spread of Enteric Fever in Ireland, and on the necessity for Pasteurisation of "Creamery" Products, by E. J. MACWEENEY, M.A., M.D., D.P.H., Bacteriologist to the Local Government Board.

Introductory remarks.

GENTLEMEN,—In reply to the request of the Local Government Board to furnish them with a report upon the methods available for the prevention of the spread of infectious disease, especially Enteric Fever, through the agency of creameries, I beg to submit the following observations, in the course of which I have felt it my duty to incidentally refer to Tuberculosis. The fact that each creamery receives, each day, milk from a number of farmers (locally known as "customers") and, whilst retaining the butter fat for manufacture, returns the skim-milk, is presumed to be known.

Relation of Creameries to the spread of Enteric.

Since Dr. Welply, of Bandon, first drew attention to this subject in 1893, there have been repeated and detailed observations of the spread of Enteric through creamery skim-milk. There are many reports by the Inspectors to the Local Government Board showing that simultaneously occurring cases in the neighbourhood have had no circumstance in common save the receiving of skim-milk from the creameries in the vicinity of which they occurred. The connection between the creamery and the outbreak must be regarded as, in many such cases, conclusively demonstrated.

With a view to obviate the necessity for treating their skim-milk, it has been suggested that creameries should undertake to receive milk only from such houses as are certified free from infectious disease. But this precaution cannot be regarded as adequate. Many cases of typhoid amongst human beings, and of tuberculosis amongst cattle, run a more or less mild and latent course, and are not recognised at all, or, at any rate, not until they have been in an infectious state for some time. Again, there are ways by which milk may come to be infected at a house where there exists no case of infectious disease, through well-water, for example, to which drainage from a neighbouring infected house has had access. Such constant and vigilant medical inspection of customers' houses, as would be required to form an efficient safeguard, is practically out of the question. The only really satisfactory way of ensuring that creameries shall not, under any circumstances, become the means of disseminating disease, is to induce them to disinfect their new milk, or, failing that, their several products, by subjecting them to the process known as pasteurisation.

By pasteurisation is meant the raising of a fluid to such a temperature, short of boiling, as will suffice to destroy the infectious properties of any disease-producing germs which the fluid may contain.

Many micro-organisms form spores, which are very resistant to heat, and can usually stand being boiled without losing their vitality. Such micro-organisms cannot be got rid of by pasteurisation. Neither the bacillus of Enteric Fever nor that of Tuberculosis is known to form spores, and pasteurisation ought, therefore, to be effective against them both. The fact is, however, that although the tubercle bacillus is not known to form spores, yet its powers of resistance to heat are far greater than those of most non-sporing organisms and approximate to those possessed by sporing bacilli. This fact necessitates the employment of a higher temperature than would be needed for the destruction of ordinary non-sporing forms like B. typhosus and B. coli.

According to the experimental researches most recently carried out, those of Bang, performed at Copenhagen, and laid before the recent Tuberculosis Congress in London, and those of Herr, carried out at Breslau, under the direction of Flügge, and published in the Zeitschrift für Hygiene (Vol. 38, pt. I.), exposure of the milk to a temperature of 170 degrees F. for about ten minutes, will certainly destroy any tubercle bacilli that may be present. Even a lower temperature (150 degrees) kept up for a quarter of an hour, would probably suffice, provided that frothing could be prevented. As, however, the machinery in use at creameries is on the continuous-flow principle and the milk is, accordingly, at its maximal temperature for a period of probably less than a minute, such a temperature must be fixed on, as will certainly destroy the tubercle bacillus within that short period. According to the latest available information a temperature of 185 degrees F. if maintained for half a minute, will deprive tuberculous milk or cream of all virulence. In actual practice, however, allowance must be made for irregularities in the working of the machine, the formation of foam, and the admixture at the outfall-point of over-heated with insufficiently-heated milk. In order to counteract these drawbacks, and to ensure that every part of the Pasteurisation the only adequate safeguard.

Definition of pasteurisation.

Temperature at which pasteurisation should be carried out.

milk shall be brought to the desired temperature, it seems advisable to specify a higher point, viz., 195 degrees F., as that to which milk ought to be brought on continuous-flow machines. I would further suggest that the term "pasteurised" (as applied to milk) be reserved for milk that has been so treated. Storch's di-phenylamine test affords an easy method of ascertaining whether a given sample has been brought to 185 degrees, which is all that is really necessary.

The stage at which pasteurisation should be carried out.

The new milk may be pasteurised. This will involve the use of an additional small cooler to bring the "scalded" milk down to separation temperature. The new "Regenerative" heaters, which I have seen in use at Convoys, Co. Donegal, at Drumshambo, Co. Leitrim, as well as at Omagh Creamery, appear to effect this cooling satisfactorily and economically, inasmuch as the heat abstracted from the "scalded" milk is transferred to the cold new milk on its way to the heater, which thus has less work to do. If the new milk has been pasteurised there is, of course, no need to pasteurise the cream and skim-milk. If, on the other hand, as I found to be most commonly the case at the creameries which I visited, the new milk is merely heated to what is looked on by the manager as the best temperature for separation (varying with the percentage of cream from 110 to 140 degrees); then the cream and skim-milk must, of course, be separately pasteurised. From the hygienic standpoint the preferable course would appear to be to pasteurise the new milk. The germs are thus destroyed at the beginning of the manufacturing process, and have not so much chance of coming in contact with the apparatus. In practice, however, the matter is one that may well be left to the decision of the manager. An excellent discussion of the point, as well as of the whole subject of pasteurisation, will be found in a lecture by Mr. A. Poole Wilson (Irish Agricultural Organisation Society Technical Instruction Series, No. 15), which can be most warmly recommended to all interested in this aspect of the creamery industry.

Apparatus for pasteurising.

The selection of a suitable apparatus is a question for the dairy engineer rather than for the hygienist. The so-called "Parabolic" or "Paraboloidal" pattern, in which the milk is forced to ascend, in a thin layer, over the interior of a steam-jacketed metallic vessel, would seem to satisfy the requirements of hygiene, provided its size be adjusted to the amount of milk to be handled. Out of thirty-one creameries which I visited, this type of heater was used in twenty, and these comprised all the establishments that were properly equipped. I feel bound to report, however, that in very few of these creameries was I able to satisfy myself that the apparatus was being worked at pasteurisation temperature.

Reasons why the pasteurisation-plant is not used for pasteurisation.

Out of twenty creameries possessing modern "Parabolic" heaters, only six were actually pasteurising their milk or milk-products. Of the fourteen that failed to do so, two failed owing to the heater being "too small," five because their cooling arrangements were inadequate; in six cases the cause of the failure could not be clearly ascertained from the manager. Possibly it was due, in some cases, to want of appreciation of the importance of pasteurising, and a not unnatural preference for customary methods of working. In other cases, the cause I suspect to have been inadequate boiler-power. In the remaining case, I was informed by the manager that the milk with which he had to work was sour and "cracked" (i.e., underwent coagulation when heated), so as to choke up the separator-howl. On Mondays this is not unusual, owing to lack of proper storage at the customers' houses. At creameries where the new milk is pasteurised, these hatches of sour milk should be detected by the proper test and rejected.

Of the eleven creameries that did not possess modern "Parabolic" heaters, nine used the now antiquated "turbine" heater, one used a simple jacketed tank, and in one there was no arrangement for heating the milk before separation. In poorly-equipped creameries the sole object of the heating is to ensure proper separation, which is usually done at from 80 to 130 degrees F. Pasteurisation is, in many of these establishments, not considered at all.

In conclusion, I may say that I think it desirable that the managers of creameries should be advised of the necessity of pasteurising their products, and that these establishments should be periodically inspected during working hours, with a view to ascertaining whether they comply with this recommendation.

In the following summary the figure indicates the number of times the defect in question was noticed:—

Summary of the chief sanitary defects (other than not pasteurising) observed at the Creameries visited.

Absence of steam connections to pipes and vats for live steam-flushing,	4
Inaccessibility of parts of piping for mechanical cleaning (where pumps are in use),	3
Irregular and defective flooring covered with pools of milky water, and so giving rise to stench,	8
Pavement at delivery platforms broken, defective, or undrained,	8
Absence of steam jets outside creamery for steam-flushing customers' cans,	20
Insufficient water supply,	5
Well not properly covered in, or not lined, or in obvious danger of surface contamination,	4
Sewage run into water-course in improperly large volume, giving rise to putrefaction and stench,	7

I think it right to state that, during my tour of inspection in the South of Ireland I derived the greatest assistance from Mr. P. J. Hannon, of the Irish Agricultural Organisation Society, whose intimate knowledge of the creamery industry proved most useful during the early stage of my enquiry. Later on, in the North of Ireland, I derived similar valuable assistance, and much information of a special kind, from the well-known dairy expert, Mr. A. Poole Wilson. My cordial thanks are due, and hereby tendered, to both these gentlemen.

I should also like to say that I found the creamery managers, almost without exception, intelligent, well-instructed, and communicative. Nearly all of them were convinced of the advantages of pasteurisation, and expressed their willingness to adopt the system.

Concluding remarks.

E. J. MACWEENEY.

VACCINATION.

(iv.) REPORT of Dr. Montgomery on the Vaccine Department of the Board.

Gentlemen—I have the honour to submit my Report on the Vaccine Department for the year ended 31st March, 1901:—

I.—Issue of Glycerinated Calf Lymph.

	No. of Applications.	No. of Tubes of Gly. Calf Lym.
1. Dispensaries, . . .	5,009	58,598
2. Workhouses, . . .	157	1,233
Total, . . .	5,166	59,831

II.—Vaccinations.

	Primary.	Re-vaccins.	Total.
Performed at the Vaccine Department, 45, Upper Sackville-street, . . .	1,046	90	1,136

The vaccinations at Sackville-street, (the York-street branch has been done away with), have increased by 87, (although the institution was closed for vaccination during the six weeks I was away on leave of absence), this increase having taken place in primary vaccinations, due to the fact that several children who would have been vaccinated at the York-street branch, had it been open, are now brought over here.

Turning to the number of applications for glycerinated calf lymph, during the past official year, the increase has been 1,263, although the lymph is now only sent to the Medical Officers of dispensaries and workhouses, whereas previously it was issued to all registered medical practitioners in Ireland who applied for it.

The number of tubes issued last year exceeds by 39,495 the total number of points and tubes of humanized vaccine lymph and the tubes of calf lymph issued during the year ended 31 March, 1900.

Since the 1st April, 1900, this Department only issues glycerinated calf lymph in small tubes, suitable for one or two vaccinations, and this material is now only supplied to the Medical Officers of dispensaries and workhouses. These officers can, however, now obtain as much calf lymph as they may require for all the vaccinations and re-vaccinations it is necessary to perform in their various districts, and although they are still allowed to carry on arm-to-arm vaccination, and also to take and store for their own use humanized vaccine, they are not supplied with any humanized vaccine lymph by this Department.

I may also add that I am gradually using calf lymph for all the vaccinations and re-vaccinations which I perform at the Vaccine Department.

When I first commenced to issue calf lymph exclusively, I had several complaints of failures from various public vaccinators, many of whom had never, I think, before used this material. These complaints are not to be wondered at, as it requires far more care and attention in its use to obtain good results from calf lymph than does vaccination by the arm-to-arm method or even when stored humanized vaccine is employed.

I am glad to be able to report that at the end of a year's trial of calf lymph by our public vaccinators they are gradually getting educated in using it, and also in not keeping it too long at their dispensary depôts before employing it, which is another fertile cause of failure. The monthly reports of this Department, which I send to the Board, enables them to see how the successes have increased, and the complaints diminished in number.

The Board will, I am sure, be pleased to learn that I receive from several of my correspondents the most flattering accounts of the successes attending the use of our glycerinated calf lymph, and of the beautifully clear vesicles produced. Many of them also state that the people are delighted with the results, and, as a consequence, the vaccinators find it much easier and more pleasant to carry on vaccination in their districts. Formerly the parents of the children had great objection to the lymph being taken from the vesicles, and also from having their infants vaccinated with the lymph taken from other children's arms.

The glycerinated calf lymph issued by this Department is obtained from Dr. J. Knox Denham, F.R.C.S.I., who prepares it at his Calf Lymph Institute, Sandymount, Co. Dublin. It is bacteriologically examined by Dr. MacWeeney, and sample tubes from each calf sent to me, and with the contents of these tubes I vaccinate some infants here, whose vesicles I inspect on the day week following vaccination. Should these vesicles be normal and characteristic, and the vaccinations in every way satisfactory, I report so to Dr. Denham, who then sends me the tubes of lymph for distribution. Should I, however, not be satisfied with the results produced by any sample, I condemn the lymph from that calf, and no more of this lymph is sent to me. On more than one occasion I have been obliged to reject the lymph, but, I am glad to say, not lately, owing, I think, to the perfected methods adopted by Dr. Denham in the vaccination of the calves, and in the preparation of the pulp from which he prepares the glycerinated calf lymph.

The tubes of calf lymph, when received from the Sandymount Institute, are stored by me in a cool chest, made by Baird and Tatlow, of London, and so constructed as to enable the lymph to be kept at a fixed temperature all the year round, and in absolute darkness, which is the best manner of keeping calf lymph, so as to enable it to retain its activity for a long time.

When issuing the lymph to my correspondents, I advise them to use it as soon as possible after they receive it, in order to obtain the best results, and instead of writing, as they did at first, for large supplies of lymph, I request them to write at intervals for small supplies, sufficient only for their immediate wants, and the more successful results which they have lately obtained prove, I think, the wisdom of this advice.

Herewith I send a short report upon the bacteriological examination of the lymph from Dr. MacWeeney, the Board's Bacteriologist, together with a report from Dr. J. Knox Denham upon the methods employed by him at the Institute at Sandymount-green, Dublin.

I have the honour to be, Gentlemen,

Your obedient servant,,

ALEX. NIXON MONTGOMERY, F.R.C.P.I.,
Secretary,

Vaccine Department, Local Government
Board.

The Local Government Board,
Custom House, Dublin,

GLYCERINATED CALF LYMPH.

ENCLOSURES (a) (b) with foregoing Report.

(a) REPORT OF THE BACTERIOLOGIST TO THE LOCAL GOVERNMENT BOARD.

The vaccine lymph issued by the Local Government Board is prepared by Dr. J. Knox Denham, F.R.C.S., at the National Calf Vaccine Institute, Sandymount, Co. Dublin. This establishment comprises an office, laboratory, operating room for calves, and stable, all of which are properly fitted up and provided with the necessary appliances. The calves are sound animals about three months old. Heifers are preferred. Their temperature is taken and recorded twice daily during their stay at the Institute. When required for vaccination, the calf is placed on the special table; one side of the abdomen, and the inside of both thighs, and the groins are carefully shaved, and the skin thoroughly washed with soap and water, and then disinfected with one per cent. solution of lysol. The antiseptic is completely removed by irrigation with sterile water, and the part is dried with sterile gauze "wipes." Vaccination is performed by means of groups of short linear incisions arranged in alternating rows. The inoculation material is either prepared at the Institute or obtained from other vaccine stations. On returning to the stable after inoculation the calf is prevented, so far as possible, from soiling the inoculated area. The temperature of the stable is kept between 55 and 60 degrees F. Collection takes place after the lapse of from 90 to 120 hours, the exact time varying with the character of the vesicles, which in some animals are found to mature earlier than in others. When the proper time has arrived the calf is replaced on the table, and the vesiculated area carefully and repeatedly doused with sterile water and dried as before. During this process any blackened or otherwise discoloured parts of the crusts are removed and rejected. The vesicular matter is then scraped away with a large Volkmann spoon, taken into a counterpoised glass capsule provided with lid, and weighed. Four times its weight of a sterile mixture of equal parts Price's glycerine and water is then taken, triturated with the vesicular matter, and the mixture passed through a Chalybeus pulping apparatus, and collected in short test tubes, which are almost completely filled, and then closed with a tight-fitting rubber stopper so as to avoid, so far as possible, access of air. At this stage one or more capillaries are charged with the freshly made glycerinated pulp, and sent to my laboratory for bacteriological examination. The remainder of the pulp is stored in a cool chest, so regulated as to maintain a temperature of about 50 degs. F. A further bacteriological examination is made at the end of a week, and this is again repeated at the end of three weeks. Should the diminution of germs have proceeded satisfactorily in the interval, and should no abnormal variety of micro-organism appear on the plates, the lymph is passed for vaccination.

The method adopted for bacteriological examination consists of culture on agar-plates, which are first poured and then inoculated with one or more loop-fulls by means of a small sterile brush. As the result of continued experience of these surface cultures, I am of opinion that they give in a shorter time a more complete and satisfactory idea of the germ content of a sample of lymph than plates poured after inoculation of the agar. I have made use of gelatine plates on occasion, but do not resort to this method save for special reasons. The agar plates inoculated by the brush method are incubated till next day at 37° C., examined, and then put in the cool incubator at about 22°, and inspected from time to time. The appearance of these plates is singularly uniform, the same species occurring each time, and in diminishing numbers, as the effect of the glycerination makes itself felt. As the result of these repeated examinations, I have been led to recognise a certain bacterial flora as being peculiar to vaccine lymph, and any departure from this, either in number or character of the colonies, would at once attract attention. There are three species, which occur almost invariably—Cocci, forming white colonies (Staphylococcus albus epidermidis); Cocci, forming yellow colonies (a form of Staphylococcus aureus), and the Xerosis bacillus. I have tested these organisms for virulence by inoculation on animals (rabbits and guinea pigs), but have never succeeded in producing a fatal infection, even when the inoculation was made intra-peritoneally. Colonies of common Saprophytex, such as Suhtilis and mesentericus, occasionally appeared and spoilt the plates by over-running them, but this was a rare occurrence. With the exception of the three species above mentioned, a sort of Streptothrix and a couple of species of Sarcina were the only organisms that occurred at all frequently.

(b.) REPORT on the Preparation and Storage of the Glycerinated Calf Vaccine Lymph used by the Vaccine Department.

Glycerinated
Calf Lymph.

The Local Government Board for Ireland determined in the autumn of 1899 to inaugurate a system by which the Dispensary Medical Officers and the Medical Officers of Workhouses throughout Ireland should be enabled to perform their vaccinations and re-vaccinations with calf lymph, active vaccinally and bacteriologically pure. To this end the Board entered into an agreement with the National Calf Vaccine Institute, Sandymount-green, Dublin, an institute which had been started early in 1895 by private enterprise, and had obtained very good results. This agreement contained stringent conditions, by which every Dispensary and Workhouse Medical Officer was guaranteed calf lymph prepared under the best methods known. The main conditions of the agreement were:—

Firstly: That the methods of producing the Lymph should be open to the inspection and supervision of such officers as the Local Government Board might appoint.

Secondly: That no lymph should be issued by the Department until it had been first examined and certified by the Bacteriologist to the Board to be free from any dangerous organisms.

Thirdly: That no lymph should be issued to any Dispensary or Workhouse Medical Officer, until it had been tested and certified as vaccinally active on children, by the Medical Officer appointed by the Board for that purpose.

These conditions appear to cover all the ground necessary to ensure that the population of Ireland may depend on obtaining calf lymph both active and bacteriologically pure.

The following is a brief description of the methods adopted by the Institute in the preparation of the lymph before its distribution:—

Calves.

The animals used are between two and four months old; suitable calves of this age are hard to obtain. There is no difficulty in obtaining newly-born calves or calves between eight and ten months, but both of these classes are found to be unsuitable for effective vaccination purposes. Heifer calves are always used when obtainable.

The calves proposed to be used are carefully selected and kept in an isolation stable for some days for observation and cleansing purposes. Here they are carefully watched and washed with soft soap and lysol solution, their temperature taken, and their general condition observed. Any calf showing a temperature above normal, cough, or symptoms of diarrhoea is rejected. The selection of calves is so carefully carried out that in six years it has been necessary to reject only four calves. When the calf is considered fit for vaccination it is then removed into the vaccination stable proper.

Vaccination
stable.

This stable is large and well lighted, being heated by circulating hot-water pipes in common with the rest of the premises.* The floor is of concrete, the walls of glass "opalite," and the ceiling of varnished matchwood. Each calf stands on a perforated, removable platform, which is daily changed, and a clean one substituted. The divisions between the stalls are all removable for the same purpose.

*See Plan of the Laboratories facing page 96.

Very young calves are fed somewhat differently from those that are older. The usual feeding is hay, calf-meal gruel, and half-a-gallon of pure milk each day. Separated milk is never used. Feeding and bedding of calves.

The question of the most suitable bedding is one not easily determined. In the Institute all kinds have been tried. Straw, oats and wheaten; sawdust, turf mould, fine pine shavings, and no bedding at all. The conclusion arrived at is that fine wood shavings, such as is used in packing china and glass, is the cleanest and best. If a chamber sufficiently large could be provided, in which the daily bedding could be sterilised, it would make an ideal bedding, particularly so as, in the opinion of Professor MacWeeney, the Board's Bacteriologist, practically all of the organisms found in calf vaccine are derivable either from the skin of the calf, or from the bedding.

The day before the calves are vaccinated, the belly and inside of thighs are shaved, and then thoroughly washed with a solution of lysol. The next day the calf is brought into the operating room adjoining the stable, strapped on the operating table, the shaven surface first washed with sterilised water, and then the surface is washed over with absolute alcohol. The vaccination of calves.

The method employed in the actual vaccination is distinctly different from that employed in nearly all other institutes, excepting the Military Vaccine Establishment in Aldershot. The shaven surface is vaccinated very much in the manner in which vaccination on the human subject is carried out, with this difference, that the calf is vaccinated with from fifty to seventy insertions, each insertion consisting of six or seven lines close together, each about an inch long, the vesicle, when mature, being easily covered by a two-shilling piece.

The lymph used for vaccinating the calves is, in nearly every instance, that from one of our own supplies, which has stood all the tests. Occasionally lymph is used supplied by Dr. Blaxall, of the English Government Lymph Laboratory, or from a reliable foreign source.

The exact number of hours the lymph should be allowed for maturing before collection is of extreme importance. On this point, the whole question of the success or failure of the supply will depend. For a long time it was our practice to allow the lymph exactly 120 hours in which to mature. In numerous instances, when this period was allowed, the vesicles had become dried crusts, from which no true pulp could be obtained, and the vaccinal activity of such crusts was found to be nil. Collection and preparation of the lymph.

So many repeated failures led us to an inquiry as to the time allowed for maturation in other institutes. A very surprising difference of time allowance was found. For instance, the time allowance was in—

Paris,	144 hours, equal	six days.
Brussels,	144 " "	six days.
Berlin,	120 " "	five days.
London,	120 " "	five days.
Geneva,	108 " "	four and a half days.
Dresden,	96 " "	four days.
Cologne,	72 " "	three days.

The conclusions arrived at here on this point are:—

Firstly: That the younger the calf the more rapidly will the lymph mature.

Secondly: That the better condition the calf is in the more rapidly will the vesicles mature (calves do not bear travelling well, and, if obtained from a distance, should be allowed a prolonged rest); and,

Thirdly: A good supply is not to be expected from calves over six months old. It may here be mentioned that there is no doubt that from some calves, in all respects apparently most suitable, very indifferent results are obtained. On many occasions it has happened that two calves of the same age, and apparently in the same condition, are vaccinated at the same time, with the same lymph, and in an identical manner, kept in the same stable, in all respects under the same conditions, yet the lymph from one will prove excellent, and the other worthless.

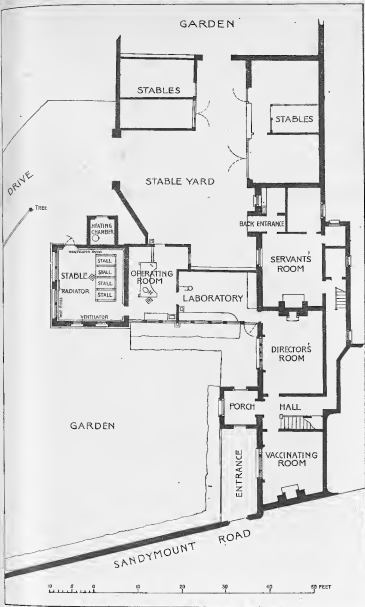

The routine adopted here is, to examine the vesicles every four hours after eighty hours have elapsed, and to collect the lymph whenever the vesicles appear sufficiently mature. Our average time is now about ninety-five hours.

When collecting the lymph the calf is again strapped on the operating table, the belly and vesicles carefully washed with sterilised pads of cotton and sterilised water, but at this stage no antiseptics of any kind are used; the vesicles are scraped off with a silver Volkmann spoon, and placed in a sterile glass beaker. It may be mentioned that all the instruments, coats, beakers, mortars, towels, &c., are daily sterilised in a Schimmelbusch Steam Steriliser, and kept in air-tight receptacles.

After collection the pulp is weighed, and four times its weight of sterile glycerine and water in equal parts by weight are added. It is then ground up in an agate mortar, and passed through the grinding machine invented by Dr. Chalybaus. It is then passed into sterile glass bottles, and kept in a cold storage chamber until required for tubing.

* A yearly rate of mortality cannot be accurately determined, as the number of individual persons relieved in workhouses during the course of a year is not ascertainable. This arises from the fact that the same person may be relieved several times during a year, and on each occasion is counted as a separate admission.

No. 5.—The following table, prepared from weekly returns furnished by Clerks of Unions, exhibits, in the accustomed form, a classification of the causes of death in workhouses in each period of four weeks from the week ended the 17th of March, 1900, to that ended the 9th of March, 1901, inclusive:—
